David Lewis Jackson, teacher

David Lewis Jackson, 53, a Buffalo native and teacher, died Saturday (April 1, 2000) in his home after a brief illness.

Jackson graduated from Burghard Vocational High School and worked for Bethlehem Steel Corp. before joining the Army. He was a combat veteran of the Vietnam War and rose to the rank of sergeant first class.

Jackson also served as a platoon sergeant in the Army National Guard. In 1978, he was honored as an outstanding serviceman.

He was a member of Bennett-Wells Post 1780, American Legion.

He was a teacher for 26 years at the BUILD Academy.

From 1978 to 1983, he also worked summers teaching auto mechanics throughout Western New York, through the Comprehensive Education and Training Act. He also dedicated many hours as a volunteer tutor.

For several years, Jackson served as chairman of the Juneteenth Festival. He also served as liaison to the National Guard.

Jackson enjoyed reading, constructing model airplanes and listening to R&B music.

Survivors include his wife, the former Clarissa Reid; a son, Jeffrey Reid of Atlanta; two daughters, Monique Reid and Jamilla Mobley; his mother, Merna E. Jackson; a brother, Charles N.; a sister, Dolores Johnson of Cambridge, Mass.; and three grandsons.

Services will be held at 11 a.m. Thursday in New Covenant United Church of Christ, 459 Clinton St.

Leedell Jackson

Leedell Jackson, known as "Mother Jackson," a housekeeper, died Saturday (July 20, 2002) in the Delaware Heights Health Care Facility after a long illness. She was 101.

Mrs. Jackson was born in Thomasville, Ala. She moved to Buffalo in 1937.

For more than 50 years she worked as a housekeeper for Dr. and Mrs. G.H. Marcy and their family.

She was a member of Greater Emmanuel Temple in Buffalo. At the church she served in the Sunday school, the Flower Committee and the Nurses Guild.

She and her husband, the late Henry Jackson, were married for many years.

Funeral services will be held at 11 a.m. Wednesday in Greater Emmanuel Temple, 151 Richmond Ave. Entombment will be in Forest Lawn's Rosewood Mausoleum.

Lillian Lewis Jackson

Lillian Lewis Jackson, 74, a longtime Buffalo resident and former employee of the Buffalo Public Schools, died Thursday (July 4, 1996) at home.

Mrs. Lewis, a native of Jackson, Miss., moved to Lockport with her family when she was young. She attended Lockport public schools and graduated from Lockport High School.

After her family moved to Buffalo, she married Leroy W. Jackson Jr. in 1943. He is deceased.

She worked as a crossing guard for the Buffalo Police Department and later as a library aide in the Buffalo school system. She retired in the early 1970s.

She was a member of Loguen Memorial AME Zion Church on Genesee Street.

Survivors include a daughter, Cynthia J. McPheeters; a son, Leroy W. III; a brother, John Lewis; three grandchildren; and a great-grandchild.

Julia A. Johnson, concert pianist, organist

A service for Julia A. Johnson, a concert pianist and organist who taught and performed music in Buffalo for 72 years, will be held at 11 a.m. Tuesday in St. Philip's Episcopal Church, 15 Fernhill Ave. Burial will be in Forest Lawn.

Mrs. Johnson, 95, the first black woman accepted to the Buffalo Conservatory of Music, died Friday (Feb. 10, 1995) in Buffalo General Hospital.

Born in Philadelphia, the former Julia Hurt came to the Buffalo area with her parents in 1903. She began studying music at the age of 6 under her mother, Essie Hurt, a concert cellist who had studied at Fisk University in Nashville, Tenn.

By the time she was 14, she was organist for First Shiloh Baptist Church and assistant organist for Bethel African Methodist Episcopal Church. She attended the former Fosdick-Masten High School.

In 1918, she entered the Buffalo Conservatory of Music. In her second year at the conservatory, she was awarded the school's first scholarship in piano.

From 1931 to 1941, she taught sight singing, voice, theory and piano through the federally funded programs, including the Works Progress Administration, which later became the Works Projects Administration.

Through the WPA, she organized a Vocalion Chorus of 32 young black singers and directed the group in a Buffalo Philharmonic Orchestra summer pops concert in 1941.

In 1954, the Music Teachers Forum of Erie and Niagara counties selected Mrs. Johnson to perform in the Steinway centenary concert with the Buffalo Philharmonic.

In the mid-1970s, she was music mistress at St. Barnabas Episcopal Church in Fort Erie, Ont.

Over the years, she was also organist at St. Philip's Episcopal, Humboldt Baptist and St. Nicholas Catholic churches.

At her death, she was a member of St. Philip's Episcopal Church and the Music Teachers Forum and American Guild of Organists.

She and her first husband, the late J. Luther Sylvahn, were divorced about 1935. Her second husband, pianist and jazz musician Ballard "Benny" Johnson, died in 1987 after 40 years of marriage.

Survivors include a daughter, Vashti Sylvahn Marshall; a granddaughter; and a great-grandson.

Johnson, a native of Dillon, N.C., died Saturday (Feb. 24, 2001) in Sheehan Memorial Hospital after a long illness.

He came to Buffalo with his family when he was 12 years old. He lettered in track, cross country and basketball at Hutchinson-Central High School. He served four years in the Army Air Forces during World War II.

Johnson received a bachelor's degree in social work and later a master's degree from the University of Buffalo.

He worked for the Department of Social Services for 19 years and was a district supervisor when he retired in 1975.

He enjoyed bowling and participated in many tournaments.

Survivors include his wife, the former Sarah H. Vernon; two daughters, Berea Wingard of Fort Wayne, Ind., and Carolyn Platt of Buffalo; two sons, Joel of California and Michael of New York City; a sister, Elizabeth of Buffalo; 11 grandchildren; and eight great-grandchildren.

OBITUARIES

Lafayette Jones Sr., landscaping business founder

Lafayette Jones Sr., 77, a longtime Buffalo resident, died last Tuesday (Aug. 12, 1997) in Forsyth Memorial Hospital, Winston-Salem, N.C., after a lengthy illness.

Born in McCormick, S.C., Jones moved to Buffalo with his family when he was 2. He attended First Shiloh Baptist Church, School 31 and Hutchinson-Central High School.

During high school, he became financially independent as the largest vendor in the African-American community for the Courier-Express.

He served in the Army during World War II. He trained as a medic at Tuskegee Institute in Alabama, and his task force, the Army Air Corps Medical Unit, served the celebrated Tuskegee Airmen. He received the Army Theater Campaign Medal of Victory.

In 1945, he began his 33 years of service with the U.S. Postal Service in Buffalo. During that time, he formed the Buffalo chapter of the National Postal Workers Alliance.

He also founded and operated a family-owned business, Lafayette Landscaping, from 1950 to 1990. He and his family were involved in street vending for many years, selling cut flowers and potted plants on Easter and Mother's Day.

Survivors include his wife of 54 years, the former Jimmie Ruth; a son, Lafayette of Winston-Salem; a daughter, Jeanette Jones Stevenson of Kansas City, Mo.; and a brother, James of New York City.

Services were held Friday in Golar Memorial African Methodist Episcopal Zion Church in Winston-Salem. Burial was in Salisbury National Veterans Cemetery, Salisbury, N.C.

Paul Lawrence Dunbar Jones, businessman

Paul Lawrence Dunbar Jones, 92, a retired businessman, died Sunday (June 18, 2000) in Veterans Administration Medical Center after a brief illness.

Born in New Albany, Miss., he came with his family to Buffalo in 1922. He attended School 13 and Hutchinson-Central High School.

As a young man, he played the saxophone and served as a fill-in player when big bands came to Buffalo in the 1930s. He also worked as a Pullman railroad car porter.

He joined the Army and served in World War II, attaining the rank of sergeant.

Returning after the war, he followed the example of his father and uncle and became a businessman. After a brief time as partner in Tip

Top Cleaners, a dry-cleaning shop on the East Side, he opened Paul's Cleaners on Pine Street, which he and his wife operated for more than 20 years.

Closing the business in the early 1970s, he worked in food service at Veterans Hospital, took courses at the University at Buffalo's Millard Fillmore College and Bryant & Stratton and became a real estate agent. He established Paul L. Jones Real Estate Co. and operated it for more than 20 years.

Active in First Shiloh Baptist Church for 76 years, he served as secretary of its laymen's league. He also attended the Moot Center.

Surviving are his wife of 53 years, Lucy Izzard Jones; a son, Robert E. of Williamsville; a daughter, Paulette J. Smith of New Orleans; and three grandchildren.

Services will be held at 11 a.m. Thursday in First Shiloh Church, 15 Pine St., after a wake at 10. Burial will be in St. Matthews Cemetery, West Seneca.

John B. Joseph, honored for WWII valor

John B. Joseph, 83, who was decorated for bravery during World War II, died Friday (July 21, 2000) in Millard Fillmore Hospital after a lengthy illness.

Born in Birmingham, Ala., he came to Buffalo with his family as a child and attended Buffalo Technical High School.

An Army veteran of World War II, he received the Soldier's Medal, the highest award for bravery not involving conflict with the enemy, for his actions in rescuing wounded and trapped soldiers from the hold of a Liberty ship that was torpedoed near Palermo, Sicily.

When high water forced him to leave the hold, he helped build emergency evacuation craft on deck until the captain ordered him to leave the sinking ship.

Returning to civilian life, he worked as a laborer at Republic Steel Corp. for 42 years.

Known as a quiet, peaceful man, he was a member of Lincoln Memorial United Methodist Church.

He married Hattie Watson in 1965 and helped raise three grandsons.

Survivors, in addition to his wife and grandsons, include a stepdaughter, Sharon Hearon; and a sister, Mable "Blanche" Joseph.

Services will be held at noon Wednesday in Lincoln Memorial United Methodist Church, 641 Masten Ave. Burial, with military honors, will be in Forest Lawn.

OBITUARIES

Trombonist Eli Konikoff dies; Dixieland band leader was 80

Eli Konikoff, the Buffalo area's premiere Dixieland jazz band leader in the 1960s, died Monday (Jan. 8, 1996) in Buffalo General Hospital after a brief illness. He was 80.

Services were held today in Delaware Park Memorial Chapel.

Konikoff, a trombonist, played his final engagement on New Year's Eve, leading a quartet at the Buffalo Yacht Club. He also sang a number of songs and told jokes that night.

"I knocked them out of the box," he said afterwards, with characteristic enthusiasm.

He began playing trombone while attending Buffalo School 31.

"I was in the sixth, seventh grade and I wanted to play in the school band, and I didn't want to play the trombone," he told The Buffalo News in a 1975 interview. "But it was the only instrument they had left." He built his reputation playing with the bands of Woody Herman, Wild Bill Davidson and Jack Mayhew. He turned to Dixieland during the traditional-jazz revival in the 1950s and created the Yankee Six, which he led from 1958 to 1973.

Eli Konikoff and the Yankee Six played six-nights-a-week engagements at the Town Casino, where they shared the stage with such entertainers as Frank Sinatra and Tony Bennett. The Yankee Six was featured on Bob Wells' weekly "Music Appreciation Night" television show on Ch. 2 in the early 1960s.

Konikoff, known for his jokes and his magnetic charm, earned thousands of devoted fans who followed him and his band from engagement to engagement.

During the peak of his career, he followed a grueling schedule that saw him rising at 6:30 a.m. to join his brothers in running Custom Cleaners on Hertel Avenue. Then, after a nap, he would be back on the bandstand.

In 1971, he was a principal

player with an all-star Dixieland band that toured the U.S. After the Yankee Six disbanded, he continued to play regularly at parties and clubs with groups such as the Morgan Street Stompers and, more recently, Sentimental Journey. He also lent his talents to numerous charitable causes, performing on fund-raising telethons and other events.

His love of music inspired the rest of his family. His wife of 48 years, the former Frances Evers, sang with the Sweet Adelines. All his sons and daughters have performed professionally.

One son, Ross, has played with Buddy Rich and Liza Minnelli. The other, Mark, also known as Eli, played drums with Spyro Gyra.

Konikoff was honored on his 70th birthday in 1985 when Mayor Jimmy Griffin proclaimed it Eli Konikoff Day, citing him as "a man of exceptional personal integrity and a professional musician of unparalleled quality."

In addition to his wife and two sons, Ross of New York City and Mark "Eli" of Hamburg, survivors include two daughters, Barbara Schlotterer of Rome, N.Y., and Randi of Winston-Salem, N.C.; a brother, Bernard "Babe"; and eight grandchildren.

LACY—Rosebud

November 1, 2002, wife of the late Melvin Lacy; dearest mother of Jacquelyn C. Hargrave; grandmother of Denise (Clinton) Landy; great-grandmother of C.J. Landy; adopted grandmother of Desiree (Marcus) Nix; adopted great-grandmother of Markii and Darius Nix all of Albany, NY; sister of Ida Hayes and the late Willie Mae and Thomas Hayes; aunt of Dan (Joanne) Workman; also survived by a host of other relatives and friends. The family will receive friends Tuesday 11 AM at the First Shiloh Baptist Church, 15 Pine St., where funeral services will follow at 12:30 PM. Interment Forest Lawn Cemetery. Arrangements by THOMAS T. EDWARDS FUNERAL HOME, INC.

Ronnie Latham, director of African dance troupe

Ronnie Latham, the director and choreographer of the African-American Cultural Center's dance troupe for more than a decade and a key teacher of African heritage dance in Western New York, died Friday (Oct. 4, 1996) in Buffalo General Hospital after a long illness.

Latham, 40, began studying dance and particularly African dance from the age of 12. His first instructor was Glennis Green. He was named director of the center's popular dance troupe in 1980 and choreographed the group's first appearance at Artpark in Lewiston that year.

Latham attended Lafayette High School. Locally, he studied with Kariamuw Welsh Ashante at the former Center for Positive Thought on East Utica Street near Main Street. The cultural center became a magnet for African-American artists during the 1970s and '80s, and Latham received some of his dance instruction from such notables as the late Pearl Primus, Barbara Stregel, Barry Leon and Rod Rogers and also worked with many prominent dancers and African drummers in the area.

In 1988, Latham traveled to Senegal in West Africa to expand his knowledge of African dance.

"We have truly lost a vital and instrumental link who gave to this community the tremendous gift of African dance. The cultural center mourns his passing," said Agnes M. Bain, director of the center.

Latham also had studied with the former Buffalo Regional Ballet Company and taught aerobics, ballet and dance at Empire State Ballet, the Polish Community Center, and in the Sweet Home Central School District. He taught courses and workshops in the city's schools and also was an artist in residence at Niagara University, where he taught African dance.

The cultural center's dance troupe, under Latham's direction, performed at a variety of public events and festivals throughout the area, including the Juneteenth Festival and the communitywide Kwanzaa celebrations. Latham also was active as a choreographer for theatrical productions in Buffalo and Niagara Falls.

Surviving are his parents, Melvin and Bernice; two sisters, Bonnie Cofield and Brendalynn Jackson; four brothers, Melvin of Clinton, Md., Harold, Donald and Ricky.

Memorial services will be held at noon Wednesday in the African-American Cultural Center, 350 Masten Ave.

Edward D. Lee, Postal Service retiree

A funeral for Edward D. Lee, 76, a fourth-generation member of one of Buffalo's first African-American families, was held Tuesday in Bethel African Methodist Episcopal Zion Church. Lee died last Saturday (March 30, 1996) in Buffalo General Hospital after a brief illness.

Lee entered the Army after his 1939 graduation from Fosdick-Masten High School. He served in Europe. After World War II, he attended Cornell University .

For a time, he was employed at the University of Buffalo before joining the Postal Service, from which he retired several years ago.

Lee was a coin collector and a model-train enthusiast. He was an active member of Bethel AME Zion Church and the 1490 Jefferson Senior Citizens Club.

Surviving are his wife, the former Helen Gilcreast; two daughters, Sylvia Smith and Bernette La Tulas; two sisters, Florence Duke and Henriette Gais; a brother, C. Bruce Lee of Berkeley, Calif.; and four grandchildren.

Donald R. Lee, leader in NAACP

Donald R. Lee, past president of the Buffalo Branch and the New York State Conference of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People and retired executive secretary to a former president of the Buffalo Common Council, died Friday (March 30, 2001) in Buffalo General Hospital after a long illness. He was 66.

Born in Buffalo, he attended local schools and as a young adult quickly established himself as a civil rights leader, business consultant and political activist.

Former Common Council President George K. Arthur in 1986 appointed Lee to be his executive secretary, a post he held until his retirement in 1996. He had worked on Arthur's unsuccessful mayoral campaign.

In addition to his work in the local and state NAACP organizations, Lee was active in the Urban League and 100 Black Men of Buffalo organization. He received the local NAACP 23rd annual Medgar Evers Civil Rights Award in 1989. He also was a recipient of the United Negro College Fund Meritorious Service Award and the Eugene T. Reed Award.

Lee also had been president of Planning Assistance Consultants of 250 Delaware Ave. The firm provided 48 minority businesses with advice in marketing, finance, construction and management in 1981.

Ten years earlier, he had been president of the state's largest privately owned minority business — the former Paper Tubes, which at one time employed 125 people. He also had served as president of the Black Development Foundation.

Survivors include his wife of 45 years, the former Annie C. Barnwell; two daughters, Markee L. Fling of Atlanta and Marianne of Buffalo; two sons, Donald R. Jr. of Jonesboro, Ga., and David R. of Atlanta; five sisters, Jeane L. Wilkinson of Mount Vernon, Roberta Downey of Sacramento, Calif., and Dolores Z. Brown, Florence L. Burrough and Alfreda A. Johnson, all of Buffalo; and two grandchildren.

A memorial service will be held at 7 p.m. Monday in Amigone Funeral Home, 1132 Delaware Ave. Burial will be in Forest Lawn.
