20.	HISTORICAL AND ARCHITECTURAL IMPORTANCE: The house was built by Mrs. Mixer in 1900. It was later remodelled by Cyrus C. Lewis, c. 1925, after a fire. J. Frederick Knowlton Mixer was a scientist and geological expert of the Buffalo Society of the Natural Sciences. A rare collection of minerals, unusual stones and fossils which he discovered at 18-mile creek was given to the University of Buffalo and The Society. The home was featured in Henry-Russell Hitchcock's Architectural Exhibition in 1940 at the Albright-Knox Art Gallery. In the exhibition catalogue he wrote; "The big, well proportioned windows, the simple composition and lack of extraneous detail contrast agreeably with the elaborate, stylistic "correctness" of most of the houses built in the twenties. Such work, although lacking Wright's creative force, suggests the possibility that residence design can be contemporary and American, dignified and

and simple, without any great modification of basic strucutre or accepted domestic traditions. "

The street takes its name from James Tillinghast, owner of the property up until July 15, 1889 when it was conveyed to Geroge L. Thorne and Byron Angell, to be subdivided for residential use. The subdivision named "Meadow View Park" carried restrictive covenants in its deed of sale. The restrictions set forth minimum house costs and minimum measure for street frontage, The homes on Tillinghast were to be of "tasteful design" and the cost was not to be less than $3,000.

The street reflects Olmsted's philosophy regarding roadways located within a subdivision; Tillinghast is a broad, long roadway with no intersecting thoroughfares, running east to west "with no special directness toward the town."
