An Invitation

The play which you see tonight is made possible by the nine hundred people who carry supporting membership in the Studio School of the Theatre.

Production of a play costs money. Royalties, rent, light, materials for stage sets, costumes . . . these are only some of the items of expense. The actors, stage technicians and scenery builders all give their services.

Our theatre is so small that box office receipts meet only part of the expenses. Therefore we offer memberships to people who are interested in continuing the Little Theatre movement in Buffalo.

Memberships cost $10.00 each and provide two tickets to each of the six major productions of the Studio Theatre. If you are not now a member we would welcome your application for the 1932-33 season.
