State University College at Buffalo Vol. 75 ROCKWELL

Moving one's belongings back and forth from home to school became a weary task after the first time. One student who just couldn't move another thing took a break from it all.

s students arrived on the Buffalo State College campus, whether at A the end of August for manual registration or the beginning of coptember just in time for classes, the school year began in it's usual

Freshmen arrived with excitement and expectations for the year ahead. Seniors came back with renewed vigor to complete that final year, and sophomores and juniors returned happily to the familiar friends and surroundings.

Even before the campus dorms were opened for all of the incoming students, the campus was full of activity. Over the summer months a Community Day was organized and took place in the Union Quad. This was a successful effort to bring together the Buffalo community with the school community in order to improve relations between the two. Prominent people such as Mayor Griffin were present for the festivities.

Also during the summer months was the annual Allentown Art Festival where students and members of the community alike enjoyed time away from jobs and classes.

Bruce Johnstone gave a small speech at the Homecoming Pep Rally. He welcomed BSC alumnus Randy Smith back to the campus.

Students got together at the Goodtimes Festival to meet with old and new friends, to relax and to listen to a number of bands. Students took advantage of the warm weather to catch some rays.

n her predictable style, Mother Nature brought unusually warm and humid weather to Buffalo as soon as classes were in session. The skies remained relatively clear (by Buffalo standards) for a good portion of the Fall semester which allowed for various outdoor entertainment.

The United Student Government threw a "Welcome Back to Buffalo State Day" party to start off the year. Although the party fell on Friday the 13th, it seemed as if a good time was had by everyone.

More good times were to follow at the 18th annual Goodtimes Festival which took place in the quad behind Rockwell Hall. There was a little bit of everything to suit everyone's style with Johnny Thunder, The Vipers, The Restless, the Angels in Vain, and the Violent Femmes.

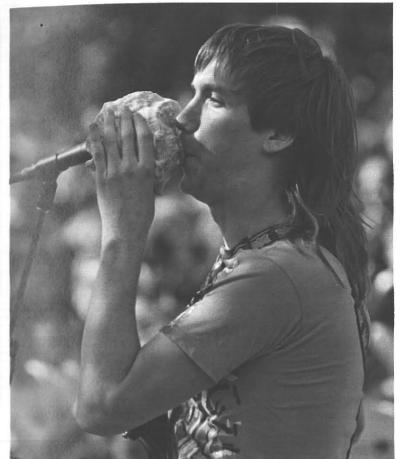

Toward the end of September, Phi Kappa Sigma conducted an Air Band Concert in which many students participated and enjoyed a little competition. Others preferred to stay out of the lime-light to cheer their friends on.

Also, the "We Want You" fair allowed students to become familiar with the many clubs on campus.

Students came together this year through various on-campus organizations to support many worth-while causes.

In the past, BSC students have been a substantial force in raising money for the United Way, and this year was no different. Many clubs, dorms and individuals were responsible for making this year's drive a success.

The Rugby Club was instrumental in helping the American Red Cross by donating more than 300 pints of blood in an emergency blood drive.

In addition, the Cross Country Team sponsored "The Daniel Walker Memorial Relay" in memory of BSC student Daniel Walker who lost his battle against cancer in September. The money raised from the relay was given to Cancer Research.

"The World's Largest Musical Chairs" took place one weekend in October in the Grant and Rees Street parking lot. It was another opportunity for students and residents of Buffalo to come together for fun and entertainment as well as to benefit the Western New York Chapter of the Leukemia Society of America, Inc.

any changes were noticeable around the Buffalo State campus. The renovation of Rockwell Hall continued throughout the year. Porter Hall looked like a new building after new windows were installed. Neumann Hall was closed to the dismay of some who had lived there, however, Moore Complex was opened once again these students and more as Neumann underwent reparations.

New laundry facilities were installed in the Student Union for the convenience of student residents as well as those living off-campus without laundry facilities.

Down the hall from the new laundry room in the Union, a more spacious pool room provided another spot for students to relax between classes or over the weekends.

The old pool room was converted into more eating space which was put to good use, particularly during Bengal Pause. The re-opening of The Bite in Moore Complex gave students yet another eating facility.

The biggest addition was the new sports bubble which accommodated the overflow of indoor sports.

What are we? . . . That's right . . . UNIFIED. The Homecoming parade brought everyone together even weeks before the big game in order to build the floats.

The Art Festival

Portions of Delaware Avenue were closed this summer in order to accommodate the Allentown Art Festival. Many took the day away from jobs and classes to enjoy the weather and soak in some culture.

A man's work is never done

Many students held down jobs while they were going to school. Craig Meyerson, Security Director of the Student Union Board kept things in control at the Goodtimes Festival.

BSC alumnus Randy Smith expressed a warm welcome to his alma mater at the Homecoming Pep Rally the day before the game.

ach year students come to Buffalo State College from around the globe, across the nation and the state.

These students have always brought with them their own customs, traditions, fashions and mannerisms.

Through social interaction, those elements of each individual meshed together and gave BSC it's unique identity.

Campus life came to mean much more than simply going to class and returning home. Students shared their thoughts, experiences and viewpoints on important issues with each other.

The "Unified in '85" theme for Homecoming weekend was apparent throughout the year as students on campus, commuters and faculty united at various social events including many parties, concerts and fund-raisers.

Students worked together not only in their classes but also in various jobs on campus.

Everyone worked to reach that common goal of graduation and in doing so shared a variety of interests which added to the uniqueness of campus life.

his year's Homecoming celebration united the student body, the faculty and in essence the entire campus through a variety of wellplanned activities.

The weekend began with perhaps the biggest pep rally yet as BSC students gathered to show their support of the Bengals Football team and to hear speeches given by Mayor James Griffin and Randy Smith, a BSC alumnus and NBA star.

The excitement and anticipation for the game was felt as the football players were each introduced and the BSC cheerleaders and Ben-Gals performed or the crowd.

Following this the Homecoming King and Queen and the Royal Court were announced. This year's King and Oueen were Gabe DiMaio and Susan McGowan. The two finalists were chosen from a number of entrants who showed participation in campus activities and academic excellence. The first runners-up were Jeff Gates and Mary Paris, followed by Jeff McCann and Tanya Brown in second place.

When the pep rally ended, students and faculty and even President Johnstone moved to the field in front of the Towers to participate in a Moonball Tournament.

The festivities continued the following day, beginning with the Road Rally early in the morning. It was a beautiful day for a parade and many people turned out to watch the impressive line-up of floats.

The line-up consisted of horsedrawn carriages, firetrucks and a large and colorful array of floats which were constructed by campus groups and organizations as well as various dorm members.

Finally it was almost time for the game. The BSC fans found the spots they wanted on the bleachers and waited for the game against the Hobart Statesmen to start.

In the float competition it was the BSC cheerleaders who won third place, followed by Perry Hall. The winners were the Sigma Phi Epsilon and Tau Kappa Epsilon Fraternities who united their efforts in making a float.

Although in the end the Bengals lost to the Statesmen, the spirit and unity of BSC students remained.

The parties continued after the game in celebration of an eventful and enjoyable game and weekend.

Community Day

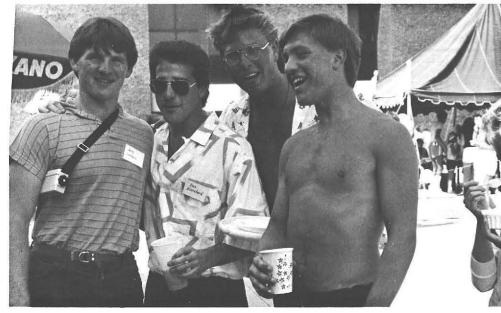

An effort to unity

n a warm day in August, all the hard work of a few dedicated individuals came together. It began as one of the first projects of the newly formed Community Relations Advisory Council. Co-chaired by Steve Gordon, USG Vice President for Community Relations, USG President Greg Hoffman, and H.M. Bateman from the Black Rock Neighborhood Housing Society, CRAC set out to get the community more involved in the campus. "We wanted to break the stereotypes and show off a lot of the services that the campus has to offer," said Hoffman.

CRAC enlisted the cooperation of many of the block clubs, local businesses and area councilmen. WBNY ran a remote from the Union Quad to cover the event. Student Union Board provided the sound system. And in the spirit of the Unified in '85 theme councilmen Hoyt and Rutecki manned the

For the five hundred people who attended Community Day, hot dogs and hamburgers were provided for free. An added bonus was a chance to really see their councilmen hard at work behind the grill.

Thanks to the assistance of Steve Muscarella, President of the West Side Businessmen's Association and the leg work of Hoffman, Gordon, Stephen Hoffman and Steven Clifford many of the local businesses made donations towards the success of Community Day including prizes for a raffle.

In order to get the community familiar with the campus, USG senator

Anne Panzarella organized tours of the campus. Many of the USG senators assisted with these tours as well as the games provided for the children in Perry Quad later on in the afternoon. That evening Casting Hall treated everyone to the one act performances of "The

You see someone walking across the parking lot. You sit somewhat impatiently in your car, wondering if this person will be leaving.

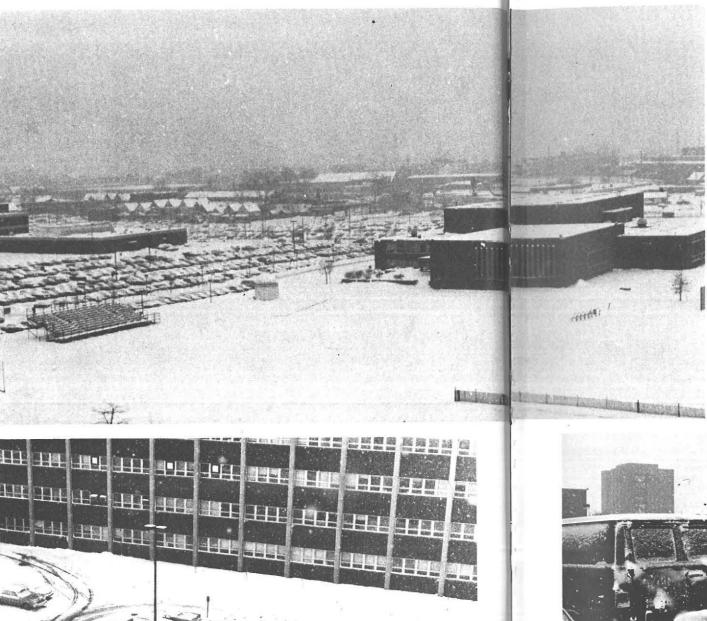

You sneak up behind him in your car and inch along . . . only to find out that he is exiting, on foot, at the other side of the parking lot.

The parking situation continued to be a frustration to students, faculty and visitors. It was like an adapted version of Darwin's theory . . . survival of ... the most aggressive!

In an attempt to relieve some of the problem, Iroquois Drive was made a one-way street and students were allowed to park in the one lane. Rockwell also became two-lanes on one side for a small section in order to free the third lane for parking. Despite these efforts, the familiar sight of students driving around the parking lots in circles was ever-present.

Some students were forced to give up and park illegally in order to get to class on time. They were often greeted with the all-too-familiar parking ticket on the windshield.

With no end in sight, BSC students took the parking situation in stride and dealt with it on a day to day basis.

proposals to close the Pub sitting

The protest against the closing of the Pub culminated at the Pub Rally held in September. Students gathered and spoke bluntly about their feelings on this issue. They also passed around petitions and succeeded in getting about 2500 signatures to save the Pub.

The students objections were plentiful. The Pub had always been a meeting place where residents and commuters alike gathered to meet friends or simply to take a break during the course of the day. It was also the location for many memorable parties.

The decision on what to do about the Pub did not come easily. There was a great deal of vascillating back and forth before a decision was made.

Some of the options which were proposed included splitting the Pub in two, one half serving alcohol and the other serving soft drinks. The thought of banishing alcohol altogether was tossed around also. FSA discussed the possibility of moving the new fitness food section to the Pub and converting the fitness food space to an ice cream bar.

The day after the Pub Rally, FSA held a board meeting at 8:00 in the morning to determine the fate of the Pub. Despite the time of the meeting, concerned students, including individuals and representatives from various campus organizations, attended the meeting. The students first concern was to make sure the Pub would stay he Buffalo State College experience differs from many others because a very large portion of the students at BSC are commuters. Traditionally there has been a division of sorts between the resident students and commuters as the two groups have different ideas of what college life is all about.

Dorm Life

Dorm students have the luxury of crawling out of bed, jogging to class and getting there with minutes to spare. They have the chance to experience life away from home and the freedoms which go with it. However, a lot of hassles are also endured by the dorm residents. They have the task of packing up all of their belongings several times a year and carting them back and forth between home and school. They have to deal with the infamous college food, firedrills and roommates who snore.

The commuters often have different experiences from the dorm residents. They have the comforts of home, good food, peace and quiet and the option to get away from school at the end of a hard day. They too, have problems to contend with. They have to get up before the sun comes up to get to school on time and in order to find a parking place. At times they feel a sense of detatchment from college life because they come for classes eacy day but must return home afterwards.

Another group of students are those who live away from home in student apartments rather than in the dorms. They have to cope with the commuter parking problems along with a few others such as how to get a landlord to fix a hotwater heater on Friday night. Still, they have the freedom of being away from home and to leave school and go "home" if they wish to.

No matter what category a student falls into they are all still students.

We all come together each day to experience classroom learning. Beyond that, there are many groups and associations on campus which students both on and off-campus enjoy. We gather together for concerts, parties, Bengal Pause and often hit the same bars.

Perhaps the division between campus residents and commuters isn't really a division, only a difference.

Mayoral Debate

Candidates Speak at BSC

his year was an eventful one in the politics of Buffalo. One of the most talked about issues in the beginning of the year was the Buffalo mayoral race.

James Griffin who was mayor for the past eight years ran against the democratic nominee George K. Arthur and Nicholas Costantino who ran on the independent ticket.

All three candidates visited the BSC campus to present their views and gain support from the students.

Griffin, who is known for representing the blue-collar section of the city did not appear to be the popular candidate, according to BSC students. During the debate held by United Students Government, Griffin angered students when he told them not to set their job expectations too high.

Arthur told students to "reach for the sky," and Costantino supported Arthur's views on this issue. Throughout his campaign, Arthur stated that he was running for the entire city of Buffalo, not just one sector.

Costantino wanted to provide a new leader for the city of Buffalo in place of the Griffin/Arthur administration.

As the election day neared it appeared that the real race would be between Arthur and Griffin.

The majority of BSC students placed their support behind Arthur, but on election night Mayor Griffin was once again victorious.

Registration

An Effort In Futility

t's what every student dreads the most, but twice a year we unenthusiastically survive it, it's - REGIS-TRATION.

This year, like every other, we were frantically flipping through the class schedule to find the classes we needed, at the times we wanted.

However, that was not always the case as the lines at manual registration proved. Students who did not receive the classes they wanted found themselves cutting their vacations short to stand on line in the gym for, yet another attempt to get their desired classes. Often times it was a frustrating experience which anyone who had ever gone through it will attest to.

Add Day People stood in all kinds of lines to hopefully be able to add courses that they needed.

And, if a student was still unsuccessful at securing a position in class, he had yet another shot about two weeks into the semester at Add and Drop days. The two week period allowed students to attend the classes they wanted to be in and beg the professor for a permission slip to get in at add day.

Seniors in their last semester usually had luck in doing this. Others who were not so lucky were asked to wait another semester and to go through the whole process again.

New Policies

BSC Fights For Their "Best Interest"

ne of the most controversial topics on campus this year was what the fate of the Pub would be.

Students were angered that decisions which were affecting them were being made without their input.

Gary Vickers, the Director of the Faculty-Student Association (FSA) quipped at one meeting that students should spend more time in the library than the Pub.

Greg Hoffman, the United Student Government President, stated the overall sentiment of the students when he said, "We are old enough to know what's in our best interst."

Some representatives of FSA wanted to dwindle the Pub hours down to twenty-four hours a week, while spokesmen for the student body argued that the Pub should be open sixty-two hours per week.

Students and faculty who supported the Pub cause asked that the Pub hours remain the same as before the drinking age went up. They rationalized that if this was done, data could be collected throughout the Spring semester and a final decision of what to do with the Pub space could be made from this information.

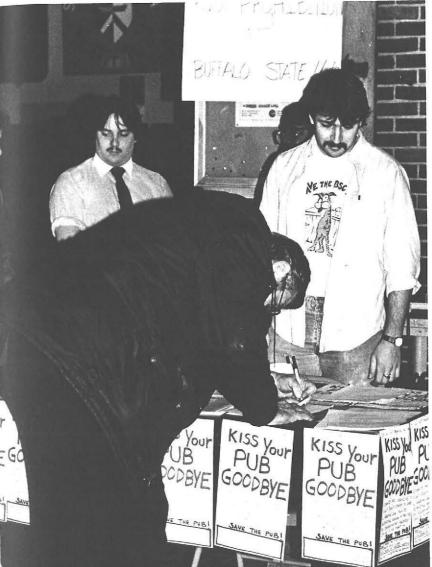

Those in favor of closing the Pub were concerned about the liability of someone under age twenty-one entering the Pub. The policy of "going by the book" was carried to the extreme when faculty members were turned away from the Pub doors because of lack of proper identification. For a time, the situation seemed to go from one extreme to another.

The result was that the Pub would remain open for a reasonable number of hours in order to collect enough data on who was attending the Pub and when. The proofing policy eased up also when it was decided that a picture driver's license would be acceptable or a document with a birthdate, backed by a Buffalo State picture I.D.

For the Spring of 1986, the Pub, that students and faculty had grown to love remained a part of BSC life.

Where'd everybody go?
December 1st brought many changes to the Pub.
The most prominent being the lack of people who had "proper I.D" and the installment of Public Safety officers at the door.

Kiss your Pub good-bye

Kevin McCarthy and Anthony Capece advised and informed interested students and faculty on the fate of the Pub.

Without hesitation

As in the last fight for the Pub, petitions were circulated. Twenty-three year old Dennis Wojnar added his name to the list of concerned students.

As the crowds gathered in the Union lobby, many stopped to "check things out." Junior David "Tinker" Urevich read the petition over carefully before placing his John Hancock on it.

Students Protest Against Apartheid

n scenes reminiscent of the student protest movement of the 60's, over 200 Buffalo State students gathered together on October 11th to demand an end to U.S. support of apartheid in South Africa, to call for the freedom of Nelson Mandela and to demand divestment of New York State public pension funds

On this sunny Friday at noon, the students slowly gathered on the front steps of the Student Union. Some were reluctant at first and stood close to the doors talking quietly to each other. Others immediately picked up large cardboard signs and started chanting "Freedom, YES, Aparthied, NO." Their signs shouted with equal intensity; "Free the Slaves," "Free South Africa," and "Demand Divestment."

The demonstration, which was sponsored by the New York Public Interst Research Group (NYPIRG), The Afro-American Student Organization (AASO), and Student Union Board (SUB), was part of the National Day of Student Protest Against Apartheid and Free Nelson Mandela Day.

The shouts of "Hey, Hey, Ho, Ho, Apartheid has got to go" echoed across the campus and were then overwhelmed by the song "Free Nelson Mandela" by the Special UK. The steps of the Student Union became a sea of waving signs and dancing bodies as demonstrators sang along to catchy lyrics

A large picture of Nelson Mandela gazed down upon the crowd from a banner held high by two men. Nelson Mandela, who at the time remained in prison, had been jailed in South Africa for twenty-three years is the spiritual leader of the African National Congress. The ANC called for the end of Apartheid, the South African white minority governments' policy of separating blacks and whites and denying blacks citizenship in their own country. Mandela had been in jail for longer than most of the demonstrators had been alive.

Music, chanting and speakers were intertwined in a demonstration that brought black and white BSC students together to know their solidarity in opposition of the system of Apartheid. When the music stopped, the chanting started immediately. Chant leaders passed the microphone among themselves. When one voice gave away to hoarseness, another voice was ready to replace it. The demonstrators, led by NYPIRG members, formed a large circle in the Union Quad and held hands to symbolize their unity against Apartheid.

Students weren't the only ones to speak out though. Dr. Keith Baird, Professor of Anthropology, spoke to the crowd about the divestment of New York State Pension funds of stocks invested in corporations involved in South Africa.

While some listened intently to Dr. Baird, others, called by classes or by the lure of the cafeteria, started drifting away. Some students, just finished noon classes, joined the mass of people to find out what they'd missed. When Dr. Baird had finished speaking and "Free Nelson Mandela" had been played once more, the rally was declared over.

Working On Campus

Money Doesn't Grow On Trees

At one point or another, no doubt all of us have been in the position of having no money. It's crucial to have it whether it's to pay for tuition, books, an apartment or the really important things such as Friday night on the town or a road trip to Canada.

Whatever the reason, many students worked throughout the year. Some Buff State students filled work study positions which were usually in the academic or administrative buildings. There were a variety of jobs which students chose from such as setting up films in the Communication building, assisting in different departmental offices as well as the various offices in Grover Cleveland.

Other students worked security jobs on campus and helped Public Safety make the campus safer. And, of course we can't forget the R.A.'s who pulled many dorm events together. Students were also found working in the various food spots on campus, cooking, serving food and that much-needed cup of coffee that many rushed for before an 8 o'clock class.

There were also those who worked off campus. Many familiar people from Buff State were seen working in restaurants and bars, among other places.

Another type of working student was the intern whose paycheck was most often experience. Buffalo State has a wide variety of internship programs and the school came to national attention when it tied in 5th place in the U.S. News and World Report survey which ranked Buff State highly among schools in the East on the basis of its preparation of students for the "real world." Internship jobs could be found in almost every major. From student teaching to reporting for the Buffalo News, Buff State students were seen working as professionals in the area.

All in all, the experience of working while going to school was beneficial to many. Not only did it ease the strain of money problems but it allowed students to branch out and meet other people besides those in their classes and gain experience in their chosen career.

Another problem was the proposed Student Course and Professor Evaluation Committee (SCAPE) document which was intended to improve academics, get students involved, highlight good teachers and in essence provide a system of checks and balances which would ensure that teachers would not become too layed back and comfortable in a tenure position.

It would have provided students with a reference source which would have helped a class selection beyond the usual word of mouth. "The students wanted it," said Hoffman.

Studying Abroad

BSC Students Discover The Old World

A trend which seemed to become even more prevelent during the past year was the decision that many made to spend a semester or year overseas.

Buffalo State alone hosts five overseas programs in countries such as England, Australia, Japan and Italy. There are countless other programs which are sponsored by SUNY and private schools alike which a student may choose from.

As diverse as the programs are, so are the topics which can be studied overseas. A student can choose anything to study from Political Science to Art History. Programs are structured to to suit every student's needs. One program may place a student into a family situation, while another may help a student to find an apartment. Some programs are structured around travel. For example, a Political Science program in Paris may take a student to Germany and England as well as different parts of France in order to fully absorb and understand the governments of three European countries.

The Siena program in Italy, puts emphasis on Art History among other things and students are taken to glamorous parts of Italy to see famous paintings and buildings face to face

The Siena program in Italy is particularly well known on the campus because Buffalo State sponsors it, but also because it is the college's oldest program. In the Spring of '85, and you'll probably see a lot of familiar faces. During the Spring Semester of '85, many Buffalo Staters along with students from various other places spent a semester together in Siena, Italy.

The Opera House

Buffalo State also has a program in Adelade, Australia. Although it was not near Sydney where this famous building is located, students often traveled to see it.

Well almost! Actually it was early March when Buffalo State students Vicky Zambrelli, Christine Cavanaugh and Denise Bisio met up and spent part of their Spring Break together seeing, among other things,

Overseas continued

Siena celebrated it's twenty-fifth anniversary.

Those who went over to Siena specifically for the anniversary party included President Johnstone and his wife as well as Dr. Hogh from the International Education office and twenty-six other alumni and friends of Buffalo State College.

In addition, the college celebrated the arrival of a Sienese student at Buffalo State. Dr. Hogh said, "It was a one shot deal which was possible because of money which has been saved over the past twenty years. We couldn't think of a better way to spend it."

In the past year, approximately forty students have gone overseas on the Siena program alone.

Studying abroad is one program which cannot be surpassed. It provides the student with the opportunity to learn another language and absorb different cultures, to travel and to learn from experience rather than books.

Celebrate Good Times

The Siena program in Italy, sponsored by Buffalo State celebrated it's 25th anniversity in April of '85 with students, the Italian families they stayed with, faculty and Alumni and friends of BSC.

Butler Library

Academic Nerve Center

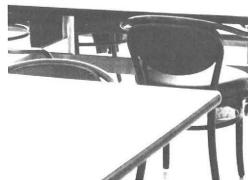

Butler Library, the academic center of the Buffalo State campus, not only provided an extreme selection of books and periodicals but also offered many other services to the student and faculty this year.

For some, the library was a place to go between classes to catch up on some reading; whether it was a textbook or the daily paper. For others who had a heavy course load, it became a second home where many late nights were spent pouring over research books.

At times, the library doubled as a museum. The first floor could often be found filled with exhibitions and various displays of artwork. In fact, the Butler Library held the Courier Express exhibit for quite a while during the fall semester.

The library offered a wide selection of materials in the microfilm library, as well. In addition, the Life Long Learning Center was housed in the library and provided some telecourses which were an alternative to the traditional classroom teaching. The telecourses provided a means for students who had a tight schedule to pick up another course and to add a little variety to their education. In effect, students could go into the library at their leisure and learn material from videotaped programs.

Butler Library also supplied tape recorders for students. In some cases, professors taped their classes for students so that if they were forced to miss a class, it could easily be made up by going to the library and listening to a recording of the class.

It is true, that at times the library wasn't always used in the most scholarly way. For some it was TOO quiet to study, but made an ideal place for a nap.

All in all, though, Butler Library was the academic information center for Students and faculty alike benefitted from the library facilities. Many students though, became angry as to the limited hours of the building and were forced to use libraries at other local campuses.

Ranked On Top

BSC Voted Number 5 in East

This year BSC was chosen as one of the best undergraduate institutions in the United States in a poll conducted by the US News and World Report.

The survey, which was given to college presidents across the country, was the talk of the campus when word got out that Buffalo State had ranked fifth in the East along side Stonehill; a college in Massachusetts.

"Schools with the best reputations among college presidents are those that insist their students be educated broadly," according to the US News and World Report article.

The report went on to say that this was a particularly significant statement in a year in which colleges were critized for letting students major in job-related curricula without exposure to the arts and sciences.

The poll was given to presidents of 1,318 four-year institutions, out of which 788 or almost 60% responded. The presidents were asked to choose the top five undergraduate schools from lists of schools which were similar to their own. US News and World Report asked them to consider "the strength of curriculum, quality of teaching, relationship between faculty and students and the atmosphere for learning."

BSC was chosen from 129 "larger comprehensive schools" in the Eastern United States as an institution which offered a strong relationship between liberal arts and professional programs, according to the article.

President Johnstone said he was "proud and excited" in a memo he released when the article came out in November, as were many students who chose BSC as their college.

GRADUATION
It's the day we're all striving for. The day when we can march with our classmates and friends, grab that diploma and head towards the future.

72 Seniors

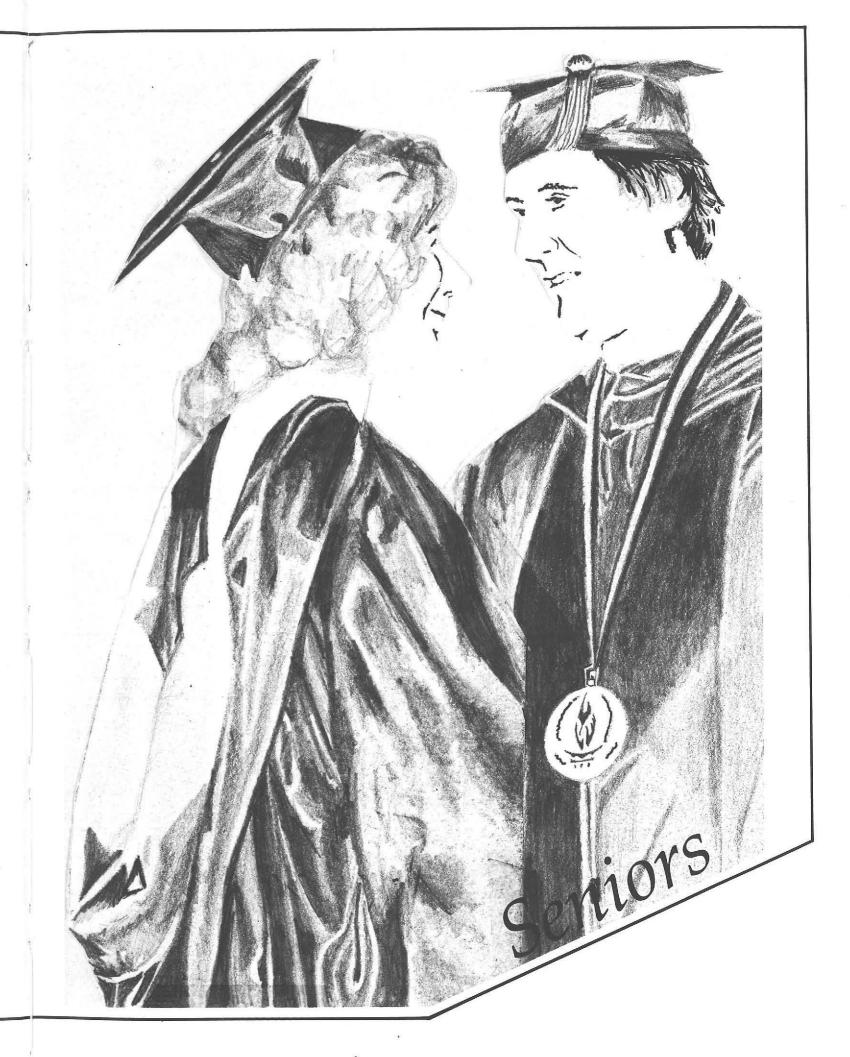

It was a bitter-sweet time for many who finally completed their undergraduate program and were able to put on the black cap and gown and walk down the aisle to the "real world."

At times it seemed as if the moment would never be achieved when studying for finals and preparation of projects never ended; weekends became virtually non-existent.

It was an exciting time but also a scary one. There were the added pressures of getting resumes sent out and trying to get job interviews.

There were happy times with friends who had become family over the four years and sadness at the thought of leaving those memories behind.

The 1986 Buffalo State Seniors went out into the world with style.

What are You Looking At?

At the ninth annual Dance Marathon participants enjoyed a costume ball during their thirty hour romp.

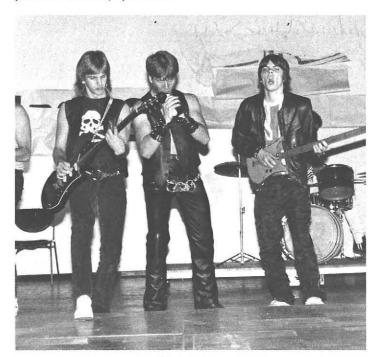

This year the Buffalo State campus was abundant with entertainment which appealed to all. When students weren't buried in their text books they enjoyed numerous activities provided by the campus and the community.

Among the entertainment highlights of the year were the bands which came to BSC campus including Violent Femmes, Shriekback and the popular British group, Simple Minds.

The Ninth Annual Dance Marathon held at BSC was a "Monster Mash" for the Leukemia Society one weekend in November. Students also took part in a big game of Musical Chairs which benefitted the Leukemia Society as well.

Some students enjoyed a little competition at the Annual Air Band Contest where they found themselves lip-syncing everyone from Morris Day to The Scorpions. And, as always, students found their way to the Elmwood Strip to the familiar Mr. Goodbar, Coles, 946, Casey's and more. Off the main strip but still on the well-beaten path of BSC students were the Inn Between and of course Reagan's where students socialized and forgot about work for awhile.

Metal Air
All eight bands, including this one, were judged on originality, appearance and performance in this years third annual lip sync contest.

And the Croud Went Wild "X", a well known band in California entertained a large group of fans in the Social Hall this year.

Help! My antennas are too tight!
Bees and other creatures invaded all bars and off campus parties to continue the spirit of Halloween at Buffalo State

Dance Marathon

A "Monster Mash" to Beat All

The ninth annual Dance Marathon benefitting the Leukemia Society of WNY involved sixteen couples dancing for thirty hours throughout the weekend of November 1st to 3rd. With a new twist being the "Monster Mash" theme, this marathon was considered one of the most successful ever.

Capturing the number one spot for the hottest rompers were Sherry Sekura and Chris Matschke. The couple brought in almost $700 and received a compact disc player and a color TV for their efforts. Taking second place was Sue Valentini and Steve Hoffman with Beth "Gypsy" Thomas and Marc Vaccaro finishing third.

Opening ceremonies began shortly after 9pm Friday as Jamie Lembeck and Kevin McCarthy, coordinators of the marathon, announced the couples that were to attempt the 30-hour mad romp. After two months of preparation, it was time to close in on a killer.

The dancers this year were treated to the sounds of nine excellent bands as well as many events scheduled to break up the long hours during the night and early morning. The bands playing included Facade and The Riddlers on Friday. During the latter, the Monster Mash costume ball convened with the dancers donning a wide variety of disguises. Around 1am, Speedy, the Electro-shock Punk Clown arrived with his dolphin, Denny, to provide laughter and madness for the dancers' and crowds' benefit.

By three o'clock Saturday morning, it was time to return to t-shirts, shorts, sweat pants, leg warmers and other dancing apparel for the long night ahead. As the pace slowed, dancers took turns entertaining each other with air guitar acts, lip-sync exhibitions. It was then that DJ Weird Tom arrived to induce new energy into the dancers as the sun began to rise. It was a spectacular sunrise from the Fireside Lounge balcony and then it was off to the Union lobby for an early morning game of volleyball followed by breakfast.

At noon, the half-way point passed and energy seemed to be hitting a serious low point. Fortunately for the dancers, it was then time for a two hour shower and sleep break. When they returned, the Fibz took to the stage and the intensity of the dancers returned to the level of the opening session. Could the pace continue at this breakneck pace? The dancers knew it could!

Group B won the Tug of War at five o'clock and had energy to spare. After a Reggae Dinner with Rude Boys, the Beat Mongers took the stage at 6:30

Breaking up the time

To keep the dancers' spirits up, activities and games were planned throughout the "Monster Mash." Stephen Hoffman and Sue Valentini, shown here, came in second place in the marathon.

Winding down

As the hours passed, many of the dancers grew tired and had to keep each other going.

Going wild

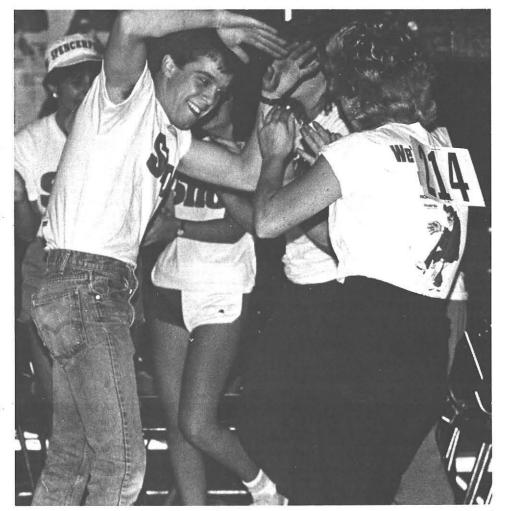

Christine Wortman and Chris Matschke were two of the dancers in this year's marathon. They showed their unique style throughout the 30 hour bash.

and held the hall's attention with superb renditions of many oldies including "Monster Mash." For their finale, some old friends were called to the stage for a reunion and their version of "Louie Louie," which soon became an extended rendition with more than half of the dancers helping with the chorus on stage. Later, Private Parts jammed to the likes of the Clash, Squeeze and other hit groups. Dancers dug deep and found their sixth and seventh winds to "keep on keepin on!"

Next, the Promise took the stage and a character named Brain Damage appeared to dance as many could only hope to do at that point. And the dancers kept going.

After the final break, Tease appeared and the dancers bopped with renewed enthusiasm. Most dancers lost count of how many extra winds it took them to last this long but they choked up another one as the end approached. Several dancers were the mere shells of what they had started as. Speedy returned late in the night to urge dancers on. With the final minutes ticking

Taking a break Contrary to popular belief, the dancers did get to take a rest during specified times. These four participants look as if they need it bad.

Keeping in step? It sometimes looked as if the dancers forgot where their feet were. Dancers often leaned on each other for support both physically and emotionally.

A change of pace

Throughout the marathon, the dancers were entertained and urged on by nine different bands.

away, all the dancers pooled their energy to keep going. Maniacal dancing took over and the intensity level became the highest yet. Emotions ran over as the final note was struck. The dancers finally collapsed on the dance floor, congratulating each other and themselves for what had been the toughest stretch of time for all involved.

At the closing ceremonies, all were thanked for their involvment and dedication. It had not just been a struggle to last thirty hours, for it was also a struggle against leukemia. Everybody present was reminded of the seriousness of the cause when the dedication was read to commemorate the marathon to Daniel Walker and Michael McCarthy, who had recently died of killer diseases. "We all miss Dan and Mike. They give us the energy to keep helping others," said coordinator Kevin McCarthy.

Soon after the end of the marathon, Lembeck and McCarthy began looking towards the 10th Annual Marathon and more madness.

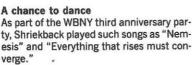

Shreikback

S.U.B. Harvey, Corky & Tice

n October, Student Union Board had the opportunity to produce two concerts in conjunction with Buffalo concert promoters Harvey, Corky and Tice. The first of these shows was the up and coming band, Shriekback. Aside from the support of SUB, the Shriekback show was also done as a part of the WBNY third anniversary party. The night began with Nullstadt as the opening band but when the headlining act took the stage, the near sell out crowd gave them a reception they were sure not to forget. Although some felt the music was too loud, most of the crowd enjoyed dancing to Shriekback's high powered beat. Those who knew the band heard many selections from their latest album, "Oil and Gold." Included, of course, were "Nemesis" and "Everything that rises must converge." Shriekback gave a truly kinetic performance that left them wanting more. Student Union Board in their aim to please brought Shriekback to BSC for a second time about one month later. This time they performed in the New Gym as the opening act for the sold out Simple Minds concert. Shriekback fans were glad for their return and those who had missed Shriekback in October got a chance to really enjoy a great dance band.

Shreikback was so popular that S.U.B. brought them back a second time for more selections off their latest album, Oil and Gold.

The band "X" reached national attention with the title song to the remake of "Breathless" starring Richard Gere. Their October 16th performance in the Social Hall brought a varied sampling of their music; hardcore from their earlier albums and more of a mellowed beat from their latest album. Sadly, attendance was poor, but "X's" performance did not suffer because of it. Lead singer Xiene Cervanka gave an energetic version of their lastest hit, "Wild Thing." All in all it was an enjoyable evening.

Some even went to the parties at Mr. Goodbar and other area watering holes. The festivities started as early as Wednesday (the day before Halloween) and continued for nearly a week.

All in all it was a weekend to remember (as it always is) and another way BSCers displayed their unique style.

Misanthrope

BCS Does Moliere

Buffalo State's production of Mo-liere's "The Misanthrope" brought 17th century style to the campus in October. Casting Hall's first production of the semester was an impressive one. The cast was composed of BSC students as well as professional actors, international students and students from UB. The French comedy takes place in Paris during a period when society was a bit ostentatious and honesty and sincerity were difficult to find.

Alceste, the Misanthrope, falls in love with Celimene who is a flirt and partakes in everything which he stands against. Steve-Scott Martin, BSC's arts coordinator played Alceste and Celiing, an exchange student from Australia.

The five acts of the play took place in Celimene's house in Paris. As the story unravelled, the audience was entertained with the humorous attempts of Alceste's friend, Philinte, to show him that honesty was not always the best policy. Philinte was played by BSC student Gabe DiMaio.

The two fops in the play were Clitandre and Acaste who were portrayed by Brian Coastsworth, a professional actor in Ontario and Tom Dooney, writer and founder of the Ujema Theater Company. Other BSC students in the cast were Patty Donati who played Arsino, Jeffrey Kamm as Oronte, Michael Matthys as Basque, Kenneth Swiate, mene was portrayed by Annette Bull- as Alceste's valet, Dubois, and Mark Wasserman as the guard. A UB student, Michelle Michael, played Eliante.

The beautiful sets were designed by Donna and Dennis McCarthy who are both associate professors of theater at BSC. When the lights came up on the stage, a backdrop of Paris was revealed along with furniture of the period and actors in intricate period costumes. The production which was directed by Donald Savage was enhanced with the music of the harpsicord which was played by Marjorie Lord.

The play was a success for Casting Hall and was well-attended by BSC students and faculty as well as members of the community.

second production of the year and it was another success story.

The production consisted of four one-act plays which centered around the topic of love relationships. Terence McDonald who just began teaching again at BSC after a two year leave directed the show. He was also responsible for writing two of the plays including "Octopi Dreams" and "Goodnight Mommy.'

The other two plays, entitled "Switching Channels" and "Two Eggs Scrambled Soft" were written by Don Rifkin.

"Octopi Dreams" was a humorous look at a married couple who were troubled by the man's recurring dream about an octopus. Starring in this play were BSC students Karen Ray and Daniel Doran.

"Goodnight Mommy" was another tale of a married couple. The woman, portrayed by Patti Donati, was one of those people who analyzed everything and drove her husband nuts. The role of the husband was played by Michael

The plot of "Switching Channels"

The result was that he had an affair with his boss, Ms. Simms, who was portrayed by Amy Berman. It was not an unusual plot until it was revealed that the boss is not only the other woman in Frank's life, but also in his wife's life. All the secrets were revealed in a humorous confrontation when Ms. Simms came for dinner. Frank's wife, Jennifer was portrayed by Sandra Walter.

Lastly, "Two Eggs Scrambled Soft" depicted the life of two college students who lived together and whose relationship crumbled one morning at breakfast in a small diner. The play featured Michelle Berke and Joe Rodriguez as well as Laura Hayton as the waitress.

Night Follies kept the audience laughing as they related to the funny things that happen when two people are in love.

The set was designed by Dennis Mc-Carthy and the costumes were by Donna McCarthy.

As a precautionary measure, Student Union Board decided to limit the sale of tickets at 2,100. This was done with good reason as Simple Minds came as if they were prepared to play in the Aud. But how many screaming fans could the gym hold? The first report was 1,600 which came from the gym administration. Then it was rumored to be 2,200 at the earlier Eng-

This year's Third Annual Air Band Contest was sponsored by Phi Kappa Sigma and DBDL Productions.

Eight "bands" competed and entertained the audience with imitations of everyone from Prince to The Scorpions.

For some it wasn't their first performance in a BSC Air Band Contest. Groups such as Morris Day and The Time returned as did Unchained, the winners of last year's contest.

The MC's for the contest were Kevin Smith from Phi Kappa Sigma and Kevin Porter, an intern at WBLK.

The entrance fee was 15 dollars for each band with a prize of 100 dollars cash which was awarded to Prince and the Revolution. Ramon Parkins did an outstanding job of imitating Prince complete with accurate choreography.

Parkins said, "All the way until the end I thought The Time would win." In last year's contest, The Time was disqualified on a technicality. They came back to this year's competition with renewed vigor.

"The Time wanted to make up for the year before," said Parkins.

Other groups performed songs by Van Halen, Twisted Sister, Motley Crue and more.

The contestants were judged on a scale from one to ten. Elements such as appearance, originality and overall performance were judged by USG President Greg Hoffman, Teri Davis from WBNY and Lisa Faigin, Editor of the Elms.

The turn-out for the event was a big one. Both students who participated in the contest and those who came to watch were entertained in style.

Casting Hall in Rehearsal

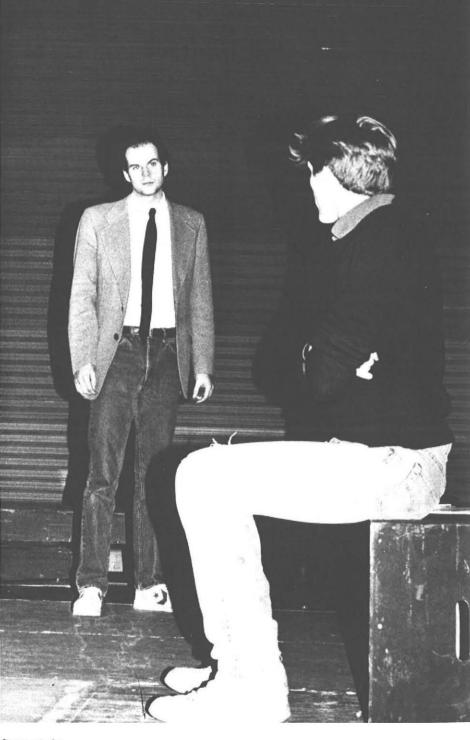

A nother highlight of Casting Hall this year was the performance of "Equus," by Peter Schaffer who also wrote the popular play "Amadeus."

"Equus" centers around the struggle between a psychiatrist and patient. According to Director, Dennis Gaul, the play is a psychological detective story in which Dysart, the psychiatrist attempts to discover the mental afflictions of a seventeen year old patient, Alan Strang. However, in his struggle to pull Alan from this nightmare, Dysart himself is forced to face the monster's of his own psyche.

Equus was Casting Hall's 1985-86 student produced, directed and designed play. Dennis Gaul who previously directed plays at the Lancaster Opera House and the Checkmate Theatre directed "Equus." Hangover At Buff State

Every hour is "happy hour"

A though the drinking age went up in December the bar scene at Buffalo state changed very little.

The every-popular Regan's and Masthead remained crowded throughout the week. Many students piled into Regan's for its 40¢ mug night on Wednesday only to return on Thursday for the Ladies night special. Masthead's popularity grew soon after it was reopened and many BSCers found themselves going back and forth between the two places throughout an evening.

Masthead and Regan's popularity can be attributed to its close proximity to Buffalo State but for those who wanted a change of pace there was Mulligan's Cafe and of course the new hot Inferno. Both of these places provided its patrons with a chance to "bust out" on the dance floor and meet new people.

"Preppie" bars appear in almost every college town. Ours was Coles. Here students found themselves surround-

No-Names, one of the many bars located on the famous Elmwood Strip was also a popular place on weekends. And, there was always Mister Goodbar's which provided a different atmosphere and was famous (or infamous!!) for its 25¢ drafts on Tuesday nights.

Right in between Monday and Friday, just about everyone was ready for a break. On Wednesday nights, many found themselves on Forest Avenue at the Inn Between. Whether to play pool, to sit and talk or enjoy the pitcher special reminiscent of the old days at Cassidy's, the Inn Between packed Buff Staters in every time.

For Buffalo State sports it was a year of up's and down's, victories and sadness. Many spectacular athletes graduated leaving behind memories and many records. The Athletic department was given a major setback in the development of indoor training. Buffalo State's athletic bubble, just weeks away from completion, was severely damaged by a storm in November. The bubble will be ready by Fall of 1986, and by spring of 1989 Buffalo State will finally have a Field House they can call their own. The plans for this Sports Complex are in its final stage and the start of this project will take place sometime next year.

Sports Information Director Howard Meyers returned to Buffalo State while Fred Hartrick became the athletic director taking over for Howard MacAdam.

Once again it was Basketball which captured the imagination of Western New York. Both the Men's and Lady hoopsters easily captured the SUNYAC West championship.

Two years later he was head trainer of BSC athletics while continuing his teaching at McKinley. In 1973 Sartori became the full-time trainer and 13 years later he wouldn't give it up for the world. It's About Time ixteen years after a proposed Field House was to be completed at BSC, architects have finally touched base with a $10 million sports complex to be completed by the Fall of 1989.

BSC To Get Sports Complex

Since the 1970 proposal was shut down, BSC has asked Albany every year for approval of a Field House and in 1984 a plan was finally approved by the State University Construction Fund. From the time that proposal was accepted, architects have been on the job around the clock to come up with the best possible plans to accommodate Buffalo State athletes. The joint venture of architects Moier-Woodson and Foit-Albert and Associates have combined to draw up plans for a 68,960 square foot complex which will be connected to the existing gym.

With the bleachers pushed back, a 160 meter running track will be exposed. During basketball events, seating capacity will be 4600 with additional seating on the floor. The Field House will not only be used for intercollegiate sports but also for other sporting events. "This multi-purpose arena will be used for intramurals, weightlifting and it will provide a fitness center for the students," said assistant Facility Coordinator Steve Shaffer.

This figure will be used for all construction costs to build the Field House. Over ½ million dollars will be spent for scenery outside the Field House. Additional funds will also be granted for any other costs which may accumulate.

> After what seemed an endless struggle with the State of New York to gain an athletic facility, BSC has finally won the battle. By 1989, Buff State will have a sports complex that will aid both the student and athlete in athletic training competitions.

Intramurals

Program on the Rise

hen Steve Schwartz was hired as Director of Intramurals in 1974, the BSC administration ad no idea how popular he would nake the program. Twelve years ago chwartz was allocated with a budget f only $4,800. Participating in 1972 vere twelve mens football teams and welve floor hockey teams. However, ith the help of U.S.G. the 1985-86 ntramurals program received a budet of over $50,000 and accommoated over 2,900 students.

The 1985 football season had an ncrease of four teams from the tweny-eight that participated in 1984. elta 7 was once again the premier eam during the football campaign, efeating "The Fifth" in the champinship game to capture their fourth traight title.

Volleyball had three champions, ith Fun Bunch capturing the co-ed tle, Bad Dudes winning the Mens hampionship and the Recking Ladies ook home the womens title.

Sixteen teams participated during the endeavor soccer season with the Generics winning the championship and Rebos capturing the title in the Womans league.

Sue Valentini became the premier racketball player among women at BSC as she captured the singles title in the fall.

Hockey seems to be the most popular of all the intramural sports with over 50 teams and 600 students participating. Entering the season the Marauders looked to protect their 1985 title as did the Untouchables in the womens division.

Schwartz, a native from Brooklyn, credits the success of the program to the students of BSC. "The program is successful because of the great student support. USG has also been very supportive increasing our budget every year," said Schwartz.

Tim Miller

ho was the number one supporter of Buffalo State sports this year? Without question it was the Bengal mascot, Tim Miller. Since his freshman year, Tim has been the craziest fan BSC has ever seen. For those whose memory fails them, he was the one with the crazy black and orange laces on his sneakers.

After being the mascot for his high school, Tim wanted to show his school spirit for State. The school had not had a mascot in years and Tim figured he would be the perfect type to bring it back into existence. "But," says Miller, "when I went to the athletic department they couldn't find the suit." The costume was finally found by athletic trainer Tony Sartori and was ready for Tim to start a new tradition by opening day of baskeball season, "I was a little nervous at first but when the fans supported me, it felt great," recalls Miller. Before long, the fans at BSC looked to Tim to get them moving. "Nothing gives me more satisfaction than getting the fans to go crazy."

Tim's favorite games, of course, are the ones against our cross town rivals, UB. Referring to last year's basketball game at the Alumni Arena, Miller remembered, "Before the game, I got into a shouting match with the mascot from UB and we ended up beating them in their own arena."

Timothy Miller was a junior this year and a broadcasting major.

he 162 by 246 foot structure was just weeks away from completion. Although the "Bengal Bubble" was behind schedule, the future looked very bright. The $450,000 project was to be used to aid the adjacent college gym. "The Bubble virtually doubles our capacity for physical education and sports. It will provide indoor stations for outdoor teams. Spring sports, like lacrosse and womens softball, will be able to train earlier," said Athletic Director Fred Hartrick.

However, mother nature would have her way. On the morning of December 2nd winds gusting at 60 miles per hour destroyed the Bubble leaving the administrators in disbelief. "It doesn't look to me like it can be repaired." Hartrick said. "It looks like we need a whole new one." The destruction was a major setback for the athletic department at BSC. The men's and women's track teams were forced to practice in the hallways of the Buffalo Memorial Auditorium, the lacrosse team had to practice in the Bengal Gym sometimes after 11pm; and the women's softball team practiced at the College Learning n offense, the BSC Lacrosse team had "fire power" second to none. Last years most valuable player, Ray Wallon helped lead the teams potent attack with brother Al, Tim Kirch and Bobby Harris. Only a freshman last year, Wallon (Ray) gained that extra experience to make him an All-American Candidate. Kirch scored nine goals in a contest during the 1985 season. Harris scored eight in a game while Wallon(Al) scored numerous hat tricks. Again this season, the foursome provided the bulk of scoring, while Jody Manning provided strength and leadership in his final season.

SUNYAC Title Within Sight

Offense is only as good as its defense and Junior Joe Delaney once again anchored the improved "D" of the lax team. Delaney, Jeff Stacy, Gene Balcaln and Wayne Newton all played tremendously in front of goaltender Mitch Pruzan.

To improve in last years record, Bucky Buccaro scored most plays against top notch opponents. "We have a very good chance to win the SUNYAC division if we can defeat teams like R.I.T. and Cortland," said Harris prior to the season.

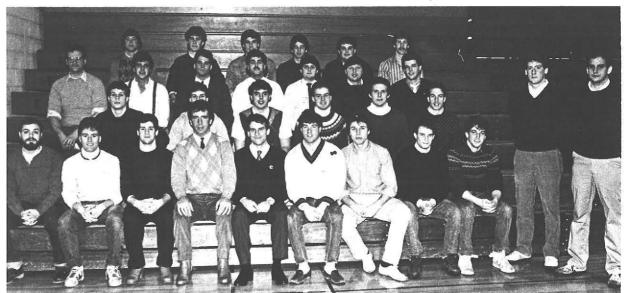

The team didn't let any believers down, as their exciting style of play always seemed to keep the Buffalo State fans happy.

with only 2 letter winners returning from last years squad, 1st year coach Jay Horowitz had his hands full. Given the hard task of coming to a team with 3 top players gone, Horowitz and 1st year assistant Mary Jeannotte couldn't expect much from the 1985 squad.

Mary Crawford and Carol Pogortalla provided leadership for this very inexperienced team, while Debbie Drake and Moreen Skipper came from nowhere to play excellent throughout the season. It was a record that BSC could be proud of considering all the turmoil surrounding this squad. Horowitz was left coaching a team with no continuity after Jeannotte had to leave her post due to prior obligations.

Putting aside the turmoil, there is surprising optimism entering next season. Jeannotte, who may be back for the 1986 season feels this team has potential. "Drake and Skipper provided a good base for next year. Kim Phillips, a recruit, will definitely help this team," said Jeannotte.

Seniors Leave in Glory

Season and Career Records Are Set

t was a season of what-ifs for the Buffalo State Football team. Like what if - Canisius freshman Mike McCarthy didn't connect with senior wide receiver George Stanley for a 34yard touchdown pass late in the game to defeat the Bengals 19-17 in this years opener. What if — with under two minutes remaining in the Buffalo-Cortland game, the official ruled that Mike Nugent's arm was in motion when he was hammered from his blind side by defensive end James Spanbauer. "It was a horrible call, "ranted BSC coach Les Dugan after the game. "his arm was in motion." What if -Buffalo State could eliminate the first 3 minutes in the game against archrival UB in which the Bulls racked up sixteen points.

The team experienced their worst record ever picking up only two victories in nine games, but with a little luck they could have had a very respectable record. The Bengals were able to pick up victories over Brockport and Frostburg St., and despite the one-sided 51-7 loss to highly ranked Bloomsburg St. the Bengals were highly competitive in every game.

State opened up the season looking for their third consecutive opening day victory but came away with a disappointing two-point loss to the Golden Griffs of Canisius in front of 3,062 fans at War Memorial Stadium. "We made mental mistakes," said Dugan, "they didn't beat us, we beat ourselves."

The Bengals picked up their first victory of the season as Kevin Bennett rushed for two touchdowns and Bernie Weber kicked a twenty-two yard field goal with 1:45 left on the clock to give the Bengals 19-15 victory against Brockport. At 1-1 State went into the Cortland game looking to go one game over the .500 mark. They lost to the Red Dragons 22-20, but established or tied nine school records in the contest. Mike Nugent completed eighteen passes and three touchdowns setting new records in both categories. Star receiver Jesse Green also had a banner day setting four records himself; most catches in a game (12), most yards receiving in one game (174), Most touchdown catches in one game (3), and most points scored in one game (18).

After losing consecutively to Cortland, UB, Mercyhurst, and Hobart on Homecoming, Buffalo State picked up their most impressive victory of the season defeating Frostburg 24-13 at Coyer Field. Mike Nugent had a great game rushing for two touchdowns and throwing a 64-yard touchdown bomb to Green.

The most exciting game of the year was the season finale at St. Lawrence. Dave Billitier had the finest day of his college career, completing eleven of seventeen passes for 276 yards in a wild 22-21 loss to the Saints. The 276-yard mark set a new Buffalo State record for most yards passing in a game.

Although the Bengals did not live up to most of their expectations, many individuals had a great season. Seniors

Rushing the passer State's quarterbacks often found themselves under extreme pressure from their opponents to pass.

Ben Chirco and Al Balcaen finished out their illustrious careers with an outstanding season. Chirco set a new record for most tackles in one game, recording twenty-one versus Frostburg. He also led the Bengals in tackles with a 105 breaking his previous mark, and ended his career with an incredible three-year total of 232. Balcaen finished second only to Chirco in tackles and finished his career with sixteen interceptions tying a school record.

Wide receiver Jesse Green also had an incredible season and established himself as one of Buffalo State's greatest receivers. In 9 games Green had twenty-eight receptions for 534 yards and six touchdowns making him far and away tops on the team. He also led the team in scoring with thirty-eight points. Green finished out his four-year career at State with 50 receptions for 1,116 yards shattering the old record set by James Parker.

ast year the Buffalo State Bengals came very close to winning the Eastern Regionals. Tim McCarthy, the only remaining member from the 1983-84 squad showed fantastic leadership and according to Bihr, was the best defensive player on the team. State also possessed one of the strongest benches in the SUNYAC division. Not only did teams have to prepare for States starting five but also had to deal with the players off the bench. Clevester Bradley, Flournory, Winiatowski, Eric Whittman and Bob Gonzalez made major contributions.

With Clinton, Flournory, Gonzalez, Link, and Robert Inch all graduating, the Bengals have some quality ballplayers to take over the tradition at Buffalo State. Phillip Williams and Jeff Burgess all saw time and Whittman will make a major contribution in the future. Bihr, however, has different plans. He is looking to Walters and freshman guard Al Young to carry this team in the future. "Al is a very good freshman guard, "says Bihr", probably the best shooter on the team. We're building around Walters and Young. Bradley is a very good sophomore and McCarthy will be returning as a senior next year."

Urho Saari (1935-39) was both a swimmer and coach of the BSC swim team and coached many California teams following his graduation. He was manager of the U.S. water polo teams in both the 1960 Olympics and the 1965 Maccabiah Games. The El Segundo Swimming Stadium is named after him.

Randy Smith (1967-71) was All-SUNYAC in basketball for three years, All-East two years, All NCAA Tournament player in 1970 and NCAA College All American for the 1969-70 season as well as the 1970-71 season. Smith totaled 1712 career points in basketball and went on to play professionally in the NBA for Buffalo, San Diego, Cleveland and Atlanta. He played for twelve years and holds the NBA record for Most Consecutive Games Played and won the MVP award in the NBA All Stargame. While still at BSC he was All SUNYAC and All New York State for three years in soccer. In this sport Smith led the 1970 team to a college best 13-0-1 record and the NCAA tournament. A Disappointing Season ean Tassy is a name synonomous with Buffalo State soccer. Tassy was an All-American during the 1970 season. Under the guidance of Fred Hartrick, the 1970 Bengals, were undefeated and were the only Divison III school in the top 20. Since Tassy took over the coaching duties in 1982, BSC has continued to have great success. Tassy's teams have compiled a winning percentage of .820. Going into the 85 season, Tassy had a record of 41-9-3 and during his three years as coach had never suffered a losing season. However, there is a first time for everything and unfortunately for Tassy and the BSC booters, 1985 will be remembered as the first losing season in

The 1985 squad lost eight starters from last year's team because of graduation or athletic ineligibility. This included three All-Americans and from day one Jean Tassy knew it would be a tough season. "We had to shuffle our whole squad because of the starters we lost and all the injuries we had," said Tassy. The Bengals lost in the opening round of both the Ohio Wesleyan Tournament and the RIT Tournament and were never able to get back on track.

"We needed to get off to a strong start, but our injuries took a toll on us. Next year we are going to have to take one game at a time," stated Tassy.

game in the Ohio Wesleyan Tournament defeating John Hopkins 2-0, as Dale Jackson picked up the shutout. The next victory the Bengals were able to manage came against Canisius; Golden Griffins 1-0 as Tim Johnson picked up his first of three shutouts of the season.

Paul Matthews continued where he left off last year having another fine season. Matthews tied for the team lead in goals with Michael Ciko, each scoring five. Both were rewarded for their efforts by being named to the All-SUNYAC soccer team. BSC also placed four members of the 1985 team on All-SUNYAC honorable mention. Tim Burns, Don Callendar, James Michaelowski, and Tim Johnson played superbly making sixty-nine saves and recording three shutouts. The Bengals played the entire season with the goaltending duo of Johnson and Jackson. Tassy was pleased with the results of his goaltenders and said, "Both Tim and Dale played great, combining both of their talents into the world have been ideal." Tassy expects his club to get back into their winning ways next season.

The Lady Bengals lost only 5 of the 15 games, compiling a 9-5-1 record, never losing by more than one goal. "We played well all year," said Goodrich, "We just didn't get the breaks in the end."

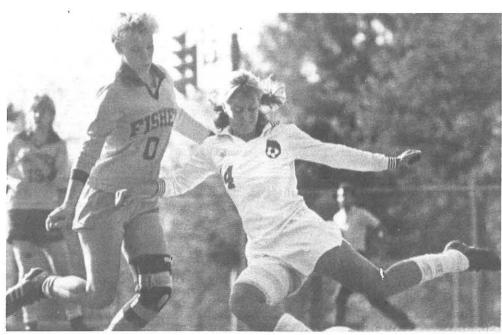

The Lady Bengals won their first two games, impressively defeating Kalamazoo 3-1 and Wilmington 5-1. It was only then that they had to settle for a 2-2 tie against William Smith. "We were really tired. When that happens, the mental game breaks down, too. We weren't thinking," said goaltender Ann hen the season started for the BSC Ladies Basketball team, coach Gail Maloney figured it would be a season of transition. Lorraine Lynch, last years leading scorer transferred. Lynch averaged 24 Points Per Game, 6 assists, 6 steals and 5 rebounds a game. With only 3 letter winners returning, Maloney entered this season with guarded optimism, "Having lost 8 experienced players, 3 of whom were starters, suffice to say we are definitely into a rebuilding year," said Maloney prior to the season.

However, the phrase "transition" and "rebuilding" were soon left out of Maloney's vocabulary. Led by Senior Karen O'Callaghan and Freshman Valerie Stokes, Buffalo State played more like a national contender than a team in need. Becoming a national ranked team was soon to be a reality after the Bengals defeated Alfred University. With the 83 to 50 victory, the Lady Bengals replaced the Saxons as the top ranked team in New York State. The victory also moved the Bengals up to the #5 spot in the Country. Earlier in the season, Alfred had defeated the Bengals in the finals at the Stony Brook Classic, but on this night Gail Maloney's squad had something to prove. "Earlier in the season we lost to them and we knew we could have beaten them; this time we were hungry. We wanted to rip them apart and pound them into the ground," said Maloney after the 23 point victory.

The Bengals became so dominating during the season, that they glided to 20 straight victories to easily capture the SUNYAC West Championship. A combination of a great starting 5 and a strong bench had opposing clubs searching endlessly for answers to stop this team. Valerie only led the team in scoring, averaging over 16 Points Per Game, while O'Callahan continued where she left off last year, once again leading the team in rebounds. Senior Jane Timm helped on the bounds while Valerie Stokes poured in 10 Points Per Game. Point guard Kindle Williams who saw action in all 26 games during the 1984-85 season again was a major force in this years championship season. Kathrin Hearn and Junior Bridget

Howard were very reliable coming off the bench to spark numerous Bengal Victories. "There were numerous times when our bench came in to spark us to victory," said Maloney.

The Lady Bengals were so good at times, that they could play poorly and still win. "Winning Ugly" was a phrase used often. For a team that was opposed to be rebuilding, the Lady Bengals conquered all odds by having one of the most successful seasons in the teams history.

Neither rain nor cold could drown the spirits of the 60 runners who participated in the Daniel Walker Memorial Relay Saturday and Sunday.

"I don't even think it matters how much money we raised. It's great seeing everybody come together for a common cause," Dave Cywinski, a runner representing the United Student's Government, said.

The relay began at noon Saturday (11/16) when the runners broke into seven teams.

At 4:30 p.m. the runners' first meal was served which consisted of baked ziti, salad, french bread, and soup which was purchased through the Faculty Student Associaiton. Six miles had been run.

"I feel good, I'm just waiting for the next run now. The first five miles and last five are the easy miles; the 10 miles in between are the hardest," Greg Hoffman, USG president, said.

Resident Assistant and USG Senator Greg Nye added jokingly, "Six miles- it seems like 60."

While the runners strived for their goals, various volunteers counted laps, prepared food, dried clothes, and sold t-shirts.

USG Senator Mary Richmond appeared tireless. In addition to organizing and overseeing the entire event, she ran 40 miles.

She estimated $1,000 and $2,000 was raised for the Walker family and research of the rare disease that claimed Daniel Walker's life.

The runners hit the half-way mark between 10 p.m. and 11 p.m. and faced 10 miles more.

"Actually, I feel great — the people we have out there, everybody is having a good time,." Jim Zubler, BSC cross country team member, said as he reached the half-way mark.

Another teammate, Becky Dederick, was tired and suffered

"I'm going to sleep in about 20 minutes," said Dederick,

The participants said they enjoyed themsleves throughout the event, which ended at noon Sunday.

Dana Kuppinger, Walker's girlfriend, also particpated in the relay. After eight miles, she said she felt good.

"Dan's parents have been so supportive, so appreciative of every little thing. They're really good people. I'm sure it hurts them, they've been through so much, but they've been great."

A Tribute to Daniel Walker

aniel Walker died yesterday. He was a friend to many people. He was that type of a person; you couldn't help but like him.

I got the phone call today— the phone call I have known for ten months I was going to get, sooner or later. The ravage of cancer made that call come a lot sooner than any of us expected.

Dan was one of us; "us" being the former members of the BSC cross country team, all those years ago. This group became very close during our years there. Why, we can only speculate. It is not the normal thing for college athletic teams to become so much a part of each other's lives. But there it was anyway- a dozen or so growing men and women, whose relationship went far beyond being companions in competition. We were "The Team." We were family.

We are still family, although graduation and jobs sent us to different worlds, from New York to New Orleans. We're having a family reunion this weekend.

One of our brothers has died.

Cancer is a horrible, evil, frightening

I have not cried yet, and I don't know why. I remember crying and crying on that day ten months ago when Dan's girlfriend, Dana, brought the news. Dan was in the hospital, he had cancer. They had removed malignant tissue from his back. We visited and visited, helping to prepare him for the fight ahead of him.

But Dan Walker was a strong man, a

> He was also sunshine. Dan Walker had an effect on people, on his friends. He could brighten any moment, bring his charm and wit and warmth to any situation. It sounds like a cliche, but Dan touched people like no one I know or could ever expect to.

it is only just. There is no sunshine today, within or without.

The next news I heard about Dan was that he was back in the hospital. and that it was bad. Tumors in his hip, his leg, and behind his left eye. I forget what they called it? Some technical name, Somebodys Sarcoma, Who cared what they called it? It was Dan's Sarcoma now.

And it was eating away at him. So much, so fast.

Dan's dad seemed to be having the hardest time dealing with the cancer. He blamed himself. Dan fell out of a tree and landed on his back when he was a child, and his dad says it was his fault he didn't take Dan to the hospital then, to make sure he was okay. That was what caused it, he says.

I know how much he loves his son, but he is being unfair to himself, causing himself such undeserved feelings of guilt. Falls don't cause cancer, and I knew we would not know how to even if they did, there would have been no way to know.

I hope our friends, The Team, can be fighter. He underwent radiation and strong around Mr. Walker at the services. Mr. and Mrs. Walker are wonderful people, and have been so strong. to be then.

> I can't cry yet. I can't feel anything. Blank.

I've never buried a friend before.

We were friends, we were family, all those years ago. We should be happy about all the good years he lived, and all the people he touched, but how can we be? Because it wasn't really "all those years ago." It seems so long ago, so far separated from where I am to-It is raining today, and I suppose that day. But I only graduated in 1984; only in 1984 did I leave behind (as many of us did) that wonderful time when The Team— The Family— existed in the same place at the same time. When Dan was happy and healthy and alive, one of the most vital parts of our bond. Before cancer ate him to the bone.

At the age of 22.

We love you, Dan, and we miss you already-miss your smiles, your jokes, your kindness, your love, your sunshine.

We hurt.

But we should be happy, because now your suffering— your hurt— is finally over. We know where you are and we know you are happy.

We should be happy.

We're not.

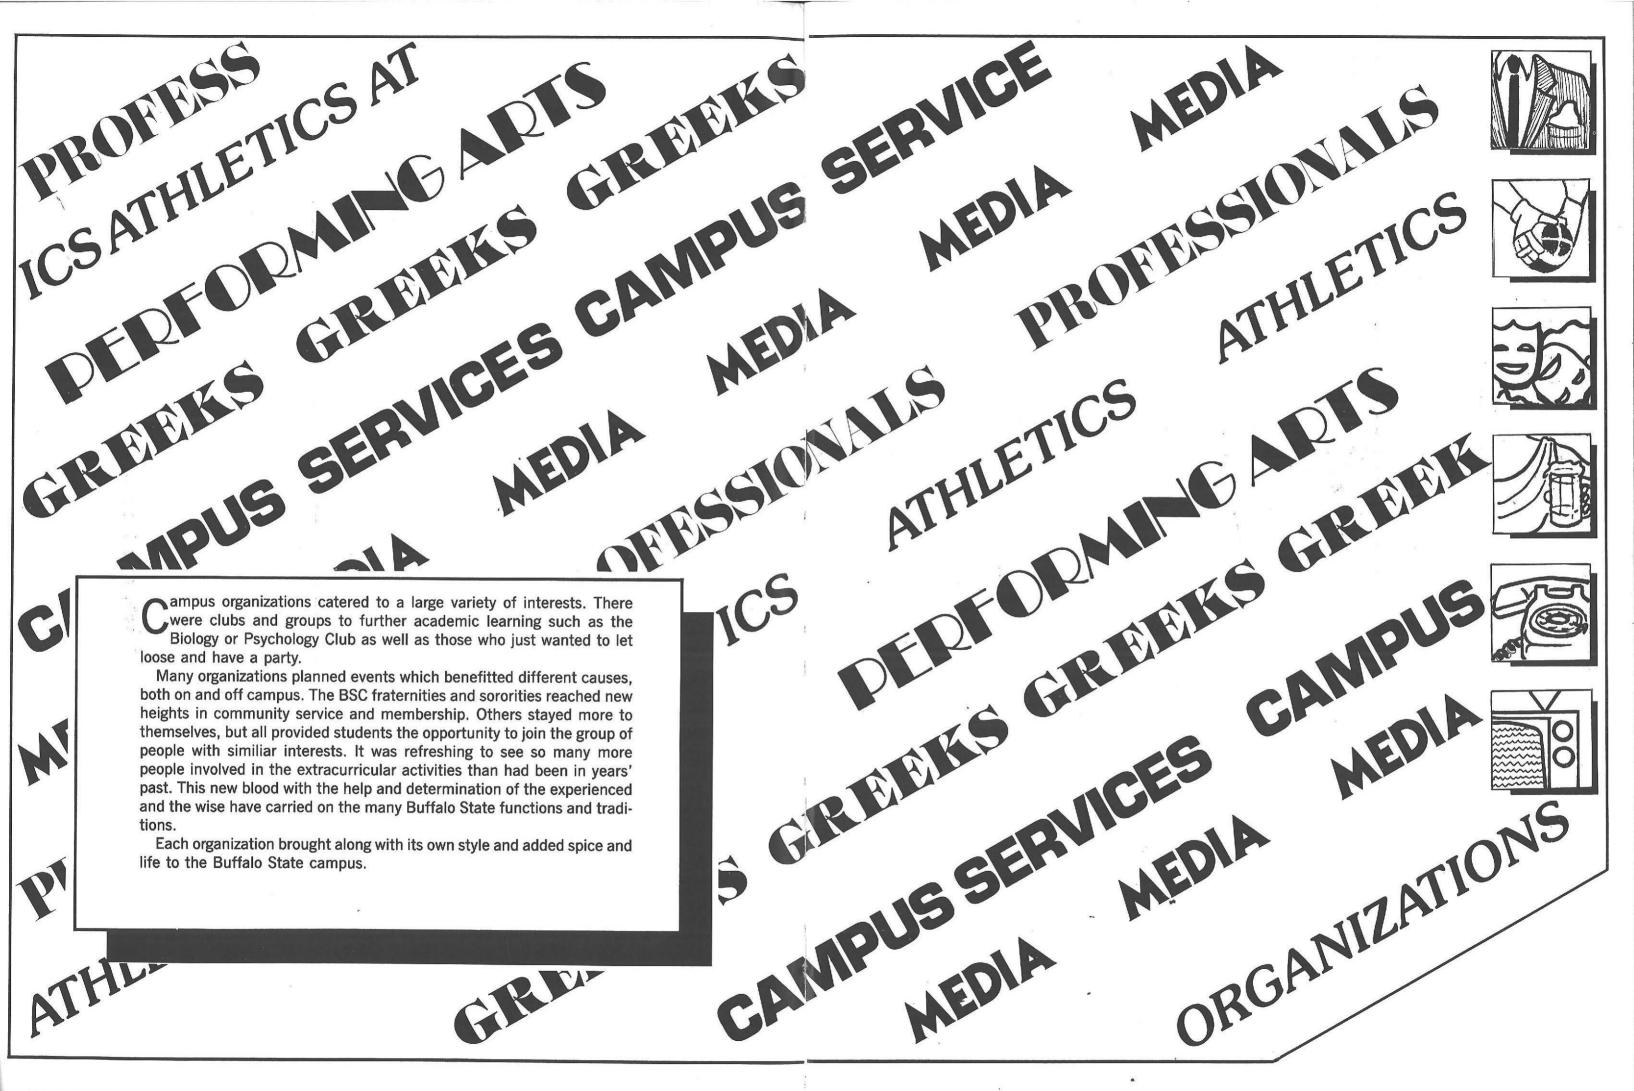

Maybe at another time. In another year. Maybe someday we'll accept it. But we'll never understand.

Or forget.

Or stop loving you.

And now i am crying.

he Ben-Gals kickline has been performing at Buffalo State College for four years and perform at all home Football and Basketball games.

Their number has grown over the years from twelve to twenty, with this year's squad being the largest ever. The purpose of the line is entertainment. In order to provide this, the girls practiced every night for two hours. Many of the girls have been on the line for two years and have grown to be a close-knit family.

As a cheerleader, strength, flexibility, endurance and dedication are essential characteristics of each squad member. At times it is not a very glamorous position, such as the UB game this past season when a "torrential" rain storm poured down for many hours, soaking players, cheerleaders and fans to the bone. TKE encourages an active college life to help round out your college career. Many members found that they learn as much from extracurricular activities as they do from their classes. Members are involved in activities like USG, FSA, Residence Life, Interscholastic Sports, Student Union Board, Music Committee, College Senate, and the Honors Society.

TKE has proven its campus supremacy by winning many awards on campus including awards for Homecoming, Holly Hanging and Fraternity of the year . . . TKE is also the Greek Games Champions for the third time in a row.

TKE is both commuters and residents. TKE offers both friendship, leadership, social events and public service experience.

The sorority also co-sponsored a bloodmobile in December with the Rugby team.

igma Tau Gamma is Buffalo State's Soldest fraternity. It was founded at Buffalo State in 1933, and has been an influential force since then. The 1985-86 school year was a very active one for Sig Tau. They brought the Red Cross on campus for a Blood Drive and also helped clean up the Allentown Theatre. During Christmas the fraternity went to a local nursing home to sing Christmas carols. They also organized the Turkey Trot, a race to benefit the United Way. The brothers were also involved in intramural sports and like everyone else, Sig Tau liked to party and became pretty well known for their bashes. Sigma Tau Gamma is also open to women with a Little Sister's organization, The Roses of Sig Tau, who worked with the fraternity to make everything they did a success.

Commuter Council Serving the Majority ommuter Council is a student directed and funded organization. Their main emphasis is serving a student body that consists of over 80% off-campus and commuter students. Besides working with the United Way and the local Red Cross in fund raising events, Commuter Council has worked closely with Commuter Services in the

"New Music" Hits Airwayes

BC's student-run radio station (WBNY 91.3) has made great strides since its early days of AM radio. In 1982 WBNY made the switch to FM.

The station has become well known for its new music format and comprehensive sports coverage. The 100 watt station had a possible listening audi-ence of one half million people. Popular music shows included "Radio Active," "Vinyl Underground," "Metal Daze," "Big Band Ballroom," and "Twilight Zone of Dance." and popular giveaway show, "Buffalo Night Life." On Monday nights the station turned to progressive talk shows such as "Nuclear Awareness," and "The Front Row."

Located in the Student Union, participation in the station had risen to almost 250 students. WBNY gave the interested student a chance for handson-experience in radio. The student got to learn production and talent aspects of broadcasting. Above all, WBNY gave its listeners a choice.

As for the staff itself, there were definitely times when the editors lost touch with their responsibilities but when it came down to deadline time, everything seemed to fall into place.

It was hard to pick and choose the events that would make this book special to everyone. We hope all those late nights paid off and that this 75th edition of the Elms will be as much of a treasure to the BSC student as it is to

A Word from Andy

This project was made possible only by the aid of many people who deserve my special thanks. The administration of the Athletic Department was always supportive. Fred Hartrick, Howard Meyers, Dick Bihr, and Gail Maloney continually made an effort to make the sports section of the 1986 Elms the best ever.

Editor in Chief of the record, Marty Morahan fed the section with valuable information as did Jeff Gates and the rest of the Record Staff. However, a special thanks must go to photo editors Peter R. Barber and Dan Cappellazzo who were able to bring the history back to life with their brilliant photography.

What can I say about the staff of the ELMS. Being the only male editor on the staff did have its advantages (and I'll never forget those memories). What I liked most was that it never became a job. At Merin Studios a huge thank you goes to Steve, Donna, Bruce and Mark. We broke records this year thanks to your assistance with senior portraits.

Last, but certainly not least, my staff — How can I ever thank you enough for all the hours and hours of time you've put in?? I'd especially like to thank the following people who went above and beyond the call of duty ...

Kathleen: What would I have done without you? I know you weren't sure about this when we started but through it all you're the one who helped me keep my sanity. When it was just you and I in the "lovely" office and we were up to our ears in negatives, chemicals, uncooperative photographers and sports editors ultimatums you pulled through.

Andy: I know I promised you a staff but, well you know how these things always work out. Thanks for doing all that leg work yourself. I know that Kathleen and I spent a lot of time kidding with you but its only because we love you. You've become a good friend and I'm proud to have had you on my staff.

Chris: To my resident saint — Be proud of this book. After all, you wrote most of it. Just think, you could have had my job if you hadn't gone to France. I'm glad you came back to the ELMS. The history of BSC might have gone unnoticed and unpublished without all of your copy. Don't worry, I won't tell anyone about all those ridiculous captions we wrote. Good Luck, Chris. I hope to see your by-line on the front page of the New York Times someday.

Deidra: Well, you wanted to be an editor. Maybe next time you'll listen to me when I tell you not to get yourself into things you can't get out of. At times it was very hard to pull rank on someone who's been my friend for so long. I'm glad you understood and were around to share all those late nights with me.

And of course there's always Dave, I would have fallen apart without the advice from Dave Gentile. It's been a year of changes at the ELMS and most of those changes could never have taken place without Dave's

Now its time to put the ELMS to bed, so to speak. A chapter of my life closes with this book. Thank you all for the time, energy and the memories.

Your ever-faithful editor,

Lisa

A LETTER OF THANKS

We, at the Elms, have had a terrific year. We couldn't have done it without the help and encouragement of a great many people. I have set this space aside to try and thank some of those people.

Within the Entertainment section, Deidra owes a word of thanks once again to John Hudson for the use of his concert pictures, to Greg Van Antwerp for his information on all the happenings of Student Union Board and to Kevin McCarthy for his input on the ninth annual Dance Marathon. She also wishes to thank all the people in Casting Hall who allowed us to interrupt their rehearsals for pictures and to those who took time to give us the information we needed. And to Debra DeJesus for all the work she did on the Johnstone article.

In Sports, Andy owes a great deal to Howie Meyers and Fred Hartrick; to coaches Dick Bihr and Gail Maloney; and to Steve Schafer for all his information on the Fieldhouse plans.

At USG I'd like to extend my gratitude to Jack McDonough for all the advice and giving me someone to bounce all my administrative ideas off of; to Linda Bazinet for keeping her faith in the ELMS to the very end, and to Stephen Hoffman, our liaison, for keeping my spirits up and keeping us looking good at those

In Memoriam

In the Spring of 1985 two very dear friends died while on Spring Break. We devote this page in honor of Kim Vaccaro and Lisa Eisman and those who loved them.

Dear Peaches and Checks,

You touched our lives like a ray of sunshine, brightening a cloudy day.

Your warm hugs or friendly "You know" somehow seemed to make things brighter.

Although you are gone from us in this life, you will live forever in the hearts of those of us who loved you.

We will always have a warm feeling inside when we think of all the happy times that we have shared with you.

Throughout our lives we will always keep the faith that someday we will meet again.

Love Always, The Spank Chang Gang

speech given on January 28th, 1986, the day we lost seven astronauts including two civilians in a terrible Space Shuttle accident.

Nineteen years ago, almost to the day, we lost three astronauts in a terrible accident on the ground, but we've never lost an astronaut in flight; we've never had a tragedy like this. And perhaps we've forgotten the courage it took for the crew of the shuttle but they, the Challenger seven, were aware of the dangers and overcame them and did their jobs brilliantly.

We mourn seven heroes; Michael Smith, Dick Scobee, Judith Resnik, Ronald McNair, Ellison Onizuka, Gregory Jarvis and Christa McAuliffe. We mourn their loss as a nation together.

The families of the seven — we cannot bear, as you do, the full impact of this tragedy but we feel the loss and we're thinking about you so very much. Your loved ones were daring and brave and they had that special grace, that special spirit that says, "Give me a challenge and I'll meet it with joy." They had a hunger to explore the universe and discover its truths. They wished to serve and they did - they served all of us.

We've grown used to wonders in this century, it's hard to dazzle us. For 25 years the United States space program has been doing just that. We've grown used to the idea of space, and perhaps we forget that we've only just begun. We're still pioneers. They, the members of the Challenger crew, were pioneers.

And I want to say something to the school children of America who were watching the live coverage of the shuttle's takeoff. I know it's hard to understand that some-

The following is the transcript of President Reagan's times painful things like this happen. It's all part of the process of exploration and discovery, it's all part of taking a chance and expanding man's horizons. The future doesn't belong to the fainthearted. It belongs to the brave. The Challenger crew was pulling us into the future and we'll continue to follow them.

I've always had great faith in and respect for our space program, and what happened today does nothing to diminish it. We don't hide our space program, we don't keep secrets and cover things up. We do it all up front and in public. That's the way freedom is and we wouldn't change it for a minute. We'll continue our quest in space. There will be more shuttle flights and more shuttle crews and, yes, more volunteers, more civilians, more teachers in space. Nothing ends here. Our hopes and our journeys

I want to add that I wish I could talk to every man and woman who works for NASA, or who worked on this mission, and tell them: "Your dedication and professionalism have moved and impressed us for decades, and we know of your anguish. We share it."

There's a coincidence today. On this day 390 years ago, the great explorer Sir Francis Drake died aboard ship off the coast of Panama. In his lifetime the great frontiers were the oceans, and a historian later said, "He lived by the sea, died on it and was buried in it." Well, today we can say of the Challenger crew, their dedication was, like Drake's, complete. The crew of the space shuttle Challenger honored us by the manner in which they lived their lives. We will never forget them nor the last time we saw them this morning as they prepared for their journey and waved goodbye and "slipped the surly bonds of earth to touch the face of God.'

A sad goodbye or a friendly hello? Members of Casting Hall dressed up in mime to promote their production and encourage a new following.

Player's anguish
Many athletes found themselves playing their last college game.
Soon their days in a BSC uniform would be only a memory.

Often times the ending of a book is the most difficult to write. The 1985-86 year cannot be summarized easily. As the pages of this book reflect, the past year was filled with changes and growth. It was a time for students to learn and direct their lives toward their goals, and of course, it was a time for a lot of fun.

Some have now completed the first year of college and are already looking forward to the next three years. Sophomores and Juniors have taken one more big step toward graduation. And for Seniors, it means the end to a wonderful college career and the beginning of a new, exciting life.

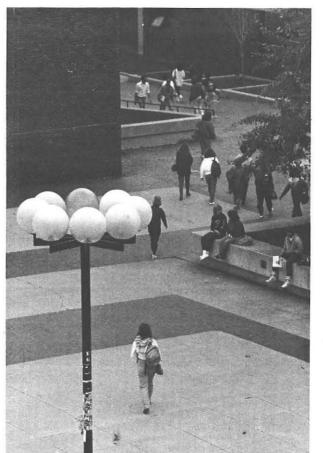

Unified in '85
This year was a year for togetherness at BSC. We were unified and diversified in ways unmeasurable.

A time for celebration
As the school year

rane to a close, many students found themselves having one last drink with their friends.

Departing
Some students left BSC this May and never turned back as they set out for the future. Others would only find new beginnings in September.

CLOSING IN Style

The memories of 1985-86 will remain with all of us for a long time to come. The friends, teachers, classes, concerts, parties, local hangouts, snowstorms, dorm life, city life and many other experiences are embedded in our minds.

The Elms, celebrating it's 75th anniversary, has tried to capture some of the highlights of this past year. It is impossible to include everything but it is our hope that in the future, students and faculty alike will be able to look back and relive the days we've all shared.
