

Call for Manuscripts
Deadline: February 1

The Language and Literacy Spectrum, the journal of the New York State Reading Association, invites submissions of manuscripts for peer review. We define literacy broadly to include reading, writing, listening, speaking, viewing, and creating in many different modes and for many different purposes in order to interact with the world.

The Language and Literacy Spectrum is a peer-reviewed journal published annually and available online. The readership consists primarily of practicing teachers and literacy specialists. The journal welcomes articles focused on classroom practice, research, and theory in literacy. We encourage articles from K-12 practitioners, literacy researchers, and presenters from the NYSRA conference.

Manuscripts may be submitted here
<http://digitalcommons.buffalostate.edu/lls/>

Before you begin to submit a manuscript for review, please be sure you have the following items

- Article title
- An abstract (separate from the article body)
- Article in Microsoft Word format

Keli Garas-York
Editor
The Language and Literacy Spectrum